Victoria Mourns Friday

Silent Period
May Be Named

Next Friday will be a day of mourning in Victoria.

Although no announcement has been made yet at City Hall, it is expected that a two-minute period of silence will be proclaimed, to be observed by all citizens.

In accordance with the desire expressed by the Queen from London today, it is unlikely that there will be any general suspension of work or closing of schools.

A statement from the home secretary said: "Her Majesty's ministers have advised that in accordance with precedent there should be no general suspension of work on Friday, Feb. 15, the day of the late King's funeral."

"Her Majesty knows well that her father will be constantly in the thoughts of her people throughout the day."

"It is her wish that as a mark of respect for his memory a two-minute silence should be observed during the period of the funeral service at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, at a time which will be announced later."

UP TO LOCALITIES

Only the courts, banks and federal government offices will be required to close, under the law, it is binding only on banks and federal institutions.

The proclamation appoints the funeral date "as a public holiday to be observed as a day of general mourning by all persons throughout Canada. Under the law, it is binding only on banks and federal institutions."

Officials said it will be up to the provinces and the municipalities to issue their own proclamations requiring the closing of their offices and stores and other business establishments. Some cities already have proclaimed the day one of civic mourning.

The federal government plans no special appeal to Canadians to observe the day as one of general mourning. It feels that the proclamation itself constitutes an appeal.

A cabinet spokesman said B.C. does not have to proclaim a holiday because, under the Interpretation Act, Ottawa's proclamation makes it binding on B.C.

The cabinet also decided today to continue with its original plan to eliminate all ceremonial frills from the opening of the Legislature, Feb. 19, even although Ottawa and Nova Scotia have decided on full ceremonies.

"It's only four days after the King's funeral and we feel we should proceed without the traditional colorful ceremonies," said a cabinet spokesman.

However, Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace is expected to have a guard of honor and be attended in state uniform.

It was also announced all invitations to the House opening have been cancelled, including those for the Speaker and ladies' galleries, and the opening day will be just like any other day in this respect. All reservations in the public gallery have been cancelled also.

Memorial Chancel

A new chancel for St. George the Martyr's Cathedral Bay Church will be named the King George VI Memorial Chancel. The church committee Thursday night decided to launch a drive for $30,000 to build it after deciding on the name.

'I PRAY THAT GOD WILL HELP ME ...'

Text of statement made today by Queen Elizabeth before 200 of her privy councillors following the solemn declaration of accession to the throne.

Your Royal Highnesses, my lords, ladies and gentlemen. By the sudden death of my dear father I am called to assume the duties and responsibilities of sovereignty.

"At this time of deep sorrow, it is of profound consolation to me to be assured of the sympathy which you and all my peoples feel towards me, to my mother, and my sister and to the other members of my family."

"My father was a revered and beloved head, as he was of the wider family of his subjects; the grief which his loss brings is shared among us all. My heart is too full for me to say more to you today than that I shall always work as my father did throughout his reign to uphold constitutional government and to advance the happiness and prosperity of my peoples, spread as they are all the world over."

"I know that in my resolve to follow his shining example of service and devotion, I shall be inspired by the loyalty and affection of those whose Queen I have been called to be, and by the counsel of their elected Parliament."

"I pray that God will help me to discharge worthily this heavy task that has been laid upon me so early in my life."

B.C. Gets Extra $9,500,000

Premier Johnson Discloses New Tax Rental Agreement; Cabinet Approves

A new clause in the Dominion-Provincial tax rental agreement, negotiated by Premier Byron Johnson in Ottawa, means that B.C. will get approximately $9,500,000 in the fiscal year 1952-53 instead of $41,500,000 as previously indicated.

A's Likely To Be 'In' Late Today

Hope is still high Victoria Athletics will survive their financial crisis.

President Bob Abel of the Western International Baseball League told The Times today at press time:

"We are very hopeful the A's will retain their franchise. We may be able to announce this afternoon that the Victoria Athletics will continue in the league this season."

Meeting with Abel today were representatives of the Athletics' Booster Club, the Athletics' own executive, and Joe Sturckler, of Sports Services Ltd., concessionaires.

The Athletics have already in cash or pledges over $20,000 of the $35,000 required to meet their indebtedness.

Today's meeting is trying to find a formula whereby the full amount can be guaranteed.

Difficulty to be surmounted now is in connection with the concessionaires' advances. A guarantor is sought for this money for the next two years.

At a brief intermission in the meeting today Abel said: "We'll have a definite answer this afternoon or this evening."

"I want to give your Booster Club the greatest thanks for giving the day," he added significantly.

Queen Mourns At Bier Of Her Dead Father

King Lies In Grey Church He Loved

The body of King George VI was placed before the altar in a chapel of Sandringham Church today, to lie in state before being taken to London for state ceremonies. Jimmie Emerson, 73-year-old royal carpenter, had the sad task of making a coffin for the King, whom he had known as a boy. It is the second royal coffin Emerson has made. He built the other one for King George V. The coffin is of seasoned oak from a royal tree felled by George VI himself.

King's Personal Servants Grieve Past 'The Squire'

By HAROLD GUARD

SANDRINGHAM, Eng., Feb. 8 (UPI)—The personal servants of King George VI filed into the master bedroom of the Royal house here today and paid their last respects to their master and monarch.

Gardeners, footmen, butlers, maids, cooks, bowlegged grooms, gnarled farm hands and gamekeepers shuffled into the ground-floor bedroom to view the body of the King.

Some cleared their throats, some wept openly.

They were the first persons outside the Royal Family to see the King as he lay in death. Queen Mother Elizabeth wanted it that way. She thought it fitting that people who loved him most and had spent a lifetime working for him should be the first to pay their final respects.

Standing a bit back and to one side in the room was Jimmie Emerson, 73-year-old carpenter, who had finished his last work for the King. It was a coffin, made from a seasoned oak which the King himself had felled.

The coffin was a simple affair of plain polished wood with a metal plate bearing the monarch's name. Emerson made one like it 16 years ago for the King's father, George V.

Near the bed stood James MacDonald, the King's valet. He found the monarch's body when he brought him his morning tea two days ago.

FAY RESPECTS

After her official duties were finished in London today, Queen Elizabeth II, came here to pay her respects.

The King's body will be taken out of the Royal house today and across the lawn of the estate to the little chapel of St. Mary Magdalene, the parish church, 250 feet away. It will lie in state there before the ornate silver altar until Monday.

The move will be private. Police have erected screens around the fence and great Norwich Gate of the estate to shield the body and the Royal Family from prying eyes.

The King's gamekeepers, with whom he spent his last day shooting in the sunshine, will place the monarch's body on a wheeled bier—the same one on which his father was borne on the short journey 16 years ago—and roll it before the altar.

The gamekeepers will stand guard over the coffin as tenant farmers and townspeople file into the church to whisper a prayer over the Squire—as they called their King.

Black skies frowned upon the estate and it was very cold. Rain threatened the short trip of the body between the "home" the King loved and the chapel in which a week ago he sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

Before the altar the coffin will sit on a pedestal draped with a Union Jack. Candles will stand at the four corners.

If tradition is followed, the Monarch, known to his people as "The Sailor King" will wear the uniform of an admiral of the fleet. Across his chest from his right shoulder to his left side will lay the blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter, Britain's highest order.

At the foot of the coffin will lie the cocked hat of an admiral and his gold-hilted sword in a black scabbard. Its shankskin grip will be polished.

On Monday, the body will be hoisted on a gun carriage and, flanked by Grenadier Guards, will be taken down the "Rhododendron Walk" to Wolferton Station en route to London and the formal funeral.

The children of the parish choir which the King loved so well have been learning anthems since as the King's gamekeepers will line the route to the station. They have contributed two pence each for flowers which will be heaped around the Monarch's coffin.

Joins Mother, Sister At Sandringham House

SANDRINGHAM, England, Feb. 8 (CP)—Queen Elizabeth arrived at the country house here today to mourn at the coffin of her father, the late King.

She and the Duke of Edinburgh sped in a big black limousine which had brought them from London.

The car turned into a side gate of Sandringham House grounds to avoid a crowd at the main gate.

At Sandringham she joins her mother and sister, Princess Margaret, who have kept a lone vigil by the coffin since the King's death.

Elizabeth, clad in black, sat erect and calm as the car crunched up the driveway past a battery of news cameramen.

She will likely remain here until the coffin is moved to London for the start of the official lying-in-state Monday.

A crowd of about 200 had been waiting in bitterly cold wind outside the main gate for about two hours. Shortly before her arrival a thunder and hail storm swept over the countryside.

The crowd caught only a glimpse of the Royal car as it swept into the side entrance.

PLAIN OAK COFFIN

Inside the estate the body of her father lay in a plain oak coffin in a dimly-lighted downstairs bedroom where he died quietly early Wednesday. He was dressed in his well-loved uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet.

Later today after the young Queen pays her respects, the body will be carried 200 yards to the little 16th Century Chapel of St. Mary Magdalene.

The Duke drove the car part of the way to Sandringham. About eight miles from the estate he was seen sitting at the wheel of the car, hatless and wearing dark glasses. The Queen sat beside him in front wearing a scarf.

A mile or so outside Sandringham, the Duke halted the accompanying police car and then he and the Queen moved into the back seat while the chauffeur took over the wheel.

As she arrived at Sandringham, Elizabeth flung her arms around her mother, her sister Margaret and her two children, Charles and Anne, and kissed them all before entering the room where her father lay.

On a few lights burned in the red-brick mansion. The setting sun gave it a bleak, chilled look. A strong north wind cut into the small crowd which stood outside.

CALLS FOR TEA

Inside Queen Mother Elizabeth called for tea and the family assembled for a talk. On the kitchen side of the house a full staff went to work readying the dinner for the new Queen.

On the flag pole over the house the Queen's personal flag went up, a black, chilled look. A strong north wind cut into the small crowd which stood outside.

Sometime tonight the coffin will be taken to the chapel on the estate, where the men who served as the King's gamekeepers will watch until Monday, when the body will be removed to London.

CABINET TAKES OATH

Chief Justice Gorond McG. Sloan administered the oath of allegiance to Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace at Government House at 2.30 this afternoon.

The lieutenant-governor immediately administered the oath to all Cabinet ministers.

Chief Justice Sloan has administered oaths to B.C. judges. Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran heard the chief justice take a new oath.

Red Military Might Poised, Adenauer Says

BONN, Germany, Feb. 8 (AP)

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer warned the West German people today that a vast Russian military machine is pressed against the Elbe and can march against West Europe "within 24 hours" if the Kremlin gives the signal.

Interrupting debate on his proposal to raise 12 German divisions for the European army, Adenauer said the first shock of a Russian attack would have to be borne by American, British and French forces in West Germany but the Germans could not expect the Allied troops to do everything for them.

German soldiers, he said, are essential to counter-balance the Soviet power.

His warning came amid sharp criticism of his policy, particularly from the bitterly anti-armament Socialists. The chancellor was having trouble within his own fold as well.

The second largest faction in his coalition government, the Free Democratic Party, said last night it would agree to arming West Germany only if the Bonn Republic gets membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and if "all still imprisoned former German soldiers" are released.

No final decision on the question was planned for several weeks, but government parties were reported framing a resolution on which to hold a test vote of parliamentary sentiment on Adenauer's plans to call up 300,000 to 400,000 German soldiers for the projected six-country European army.

In Fatal Fall

VANCOUVER, Feb. 8 (CP)—Harold Bowling, 25, dropped four stories to his death today from the bathroom window of the east-end rooming house where he resided.

Police said Bowling entered the rooming house shortly after dawn. He looked himself in the bathroom and then jumped, landing in the lane.

Britain's Second 'Good Queen Bess' Hailed By Thousands With Age-Old Pageantry At Proclamation

By EDWARD CURTIS

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Battered trumpets sounded and field pieces boomed today as Britain drew forth centuries-old pageantry to proclaim the second "Good Queen Bess" in history.

Thousands gathered to hear the solemn reading of the proclamation from a high balcony of St. James' Palace.

They were a sombre throng, dressed in the dull colors of mourning for their King.

At precisely 11 a.m. (3 a.m. P.S.T.) a tiny bell tinkled behind the high walls of the palace yard.

Officers of the Coldstream Guards, wearing black arm-bands, barked sharp orders.

The Guardsmen snapped to attention, standing stiffly in their long grey coats and tall, black bearskin hats.

From the balcony, heralds with the Royal coat of arms blazoned on banners fluttering from their trumpets, blew three flourishes.

The garter king-of-arms, Sir George Bellwe, stepped forward, wearing a richly-embroidered tabard, a short, loose-sleeved jacket of 15th century style.

His voice—deadened by traffic sounds—came over a specially installed public address system almost inaudibly. Only an occasional word reached the multitude looking up at him.

But at the end one phrase came through clear and distinct: "God Save the Queen."

When Bellwe had nearly finished, a burst of sunlight dazzled the crowd in the square and the shivering dignitaries standing on the roofs of nearby buildings.

The trumpeters sounded another flourish after he completed the proclamation.

The band of the Coldstream Guards, their drums draped and unused, played the anthem, "God Save the Queen."

As its last notes sounded, the saluting guns began to boom.

Those on Tower Hill, three miles down the Thames from Buckingham Palace, fired a salute of 62 guns. In Hyde Park, a short distance away from St. James', another battery boomed out a salute of 41 guns. The Garrison in Woolwich fired 21 guns.

The new Queen, who still lives in Clarence House just behind St. James' Palace, did not witness the proclamation.

Most of the members of the

Prime Minister Winston Churchill stood alone at an open window on the north side of the court. He was bare-headed and wore a black overcoat.

The ceremony at St. James' Palace took only three minutes. A procession of five carriages then wheeled out from the palace, at the trot. The gold, silver and scarlet of the uniformed household cavalry led the way, clattering down the broad Mall and through Admiralty Arch into Trafalgar Square.

The state procession drew up beneath the statue, The Lancaster Herald, A. G. B. Russell, in colorful robes and cocked hat, rose in his carriage.

A pale sun shone on the neo-gothic law court building as scarlet-robed city sheriffs lined up in the middle of the street at Temple Bar for the ceremonial challenging of the Queen's men at the boundary to the Old City of London.

Royal trumpeters sounded a fanfare. A scarlet barrier was stretched across the street as the procession neared.

"Who goes there?" rang out the challenge from the Lord Mayor's men.

In scarlet, blue and gold, portcullis pursuivants, a page replied: "Her Majesty's men at arms who demand entrance to the City to proclaim Her Royal Majesty Queen Elizabeth."

In the crush of the crowd several persons fainted.

In Trafalgar Square other thousands packed themselves around the base of Nelson's column.

In front of the statue of Charles I. on the Charing Cross side of the square, the band of the Grenadier Guards was drawn up, their drums draped in crepe.

He unrolled his manuscript and again read the proclamation.

In a loud voice he ended with "God Save the Queen." He raised his hat and again the trumpeters blasted a fanfare.

Solemnly the Guards' band played the anthem.

The procession moved off down the Strand toward the Old City of London.

Messengers carried the proclamation to the Lord Mayor. He ordered admission granted to the procession so that "his order of council may be read out."

Slowly and solemnly, the scarlet-clad sheriffs, preceded by the golden city mace and the splendidly-encrusted sword, gave way.

They formed up at the end of Chancery Lane. The escort of Household Cavalry clattered down Fleet Street with breastplates shining and plumes flying.

Once more the solemn proclamation rang out. It was read by the Ulster king of arms, Sir Gerald W. Wollaston.

It finished, "God Save the Queen," in which the crowd and the city officials joined in. A military band played the National Anthem.

"God Save the Queen," rang out once more, and with a great shout the multitude of citizens, troops and gorgeously clad officials in medieval and modern uniforms roared three cheers for Britain's new sovereign.

The procession, accompanied by the Lord Mayor, sheriffs and aldermen, set off for the Royal Exchange.

There the proclamation was read a fourth time, by Clarence king of arms, 80-year-old Sir Arthur Cochrane. He stood on the steps of the building, in the heart of London's financial district.

The proclamation also was read at the Tower of London, while the guns atop that ancient pile of stone measured out a salute of 62 rounds.

The governor of the tower, Col. James Carkeet, first read it on the green in the heart of the tower. He stood in the middle of a square formed by Yeomen of the Guard—the famous old beef-eaters.

From the green, the yeomen and the tower governor marched up to Tower Hill. The Governor again read the proclamation. Then they returned to the tower for three more readings, each ending with the word "amen."

The booming guns and the ceremony failed to disturb the ravens of the tower.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

The more you listen to the experts, the more you wonder if parents are in any way qualified to raise children. It's complicated, and parents are too emotional and ill-informed. Child study is a life-long job—something for the specialists.

It's a little unfortunate, but science hasn't yet eliminated the parent from the actual production of the infant. But give science a little more time.

Once the youngster has arrived, though, it should be taken out of the parents' hands. Pappy and Mommy should be given a glimpse of the small bundle, should be allowed to go to and gaw at it a few minutes, and then the child should be removed for processing.

Twenty-one to 25 years later, capped and gowned and with a university degree, it should be returned to parents, but not necessarily the same ones to which it was born. They might not be compatible.

Just because people have been fumbling along for a few thousand years bringing up children haphazardly, that doesn't mean a change isn't in order. Why go stumbling into the future the way humanity has staggered through the past?

You recognize a parent's limitations whenever you compare the correct procedures of child-raising with the actualities of the average home. Little things point it up. You learn, for instance, how wide the field of discipline is. Reward a child for doing the good thing; don't spank him for the bad. Never strike a child. That's only an admission of your own defeat, your own inability to handle a situation.

It Gets Confusing

How does it work out? Well, the youngsters are going to a swimming meet. You promise them a milk shake (price 16 cents) if they win a Victoria Trophy (price 40 cents) if they win a race. That's rewarding them for achievement.

But shucks, it isn't the right thing to do. You're making the little rascals strive for gain. You're corrupting them with the professional spirit. You're destroying that fine, uplifting joy of merely participating without concentrating on victory.

You see, your whole attitude is wrong. You're trying to make competitors of them. Once they get the idea that winning pays off, they'll be out to beat the other kids. And since all kids can't win, look at the disappointments you're piling up for them. Look at the inferiority complexes you're creating. Haven't you heard of psychology?

Anyhow, what makes you think they want to swim in the first place? Maybe that's just your idea and you're imposing it on them. Maybe they'd be much happier being the Ferdinand type, sitting under a tree and smelling the flowers. They have to lead their own lives, not yours. What business have you pushing them into something along lines you favor?

Protection At School

It can be the same at school. Only the experts are checking you there. You want the youngsters to rank high in the class. But what business is it of yours if they do or don't? The specialist has decided the competency of your boy or girl. What's the use of pressuring the kid? Anyhow, you're not going to find out. That's one of the beauties of the report card system. It'll give you a general idea of where they stand, but it isn't going to allow you to make too fine distinctions, to draw too many invidious comparisons. It may leave you a bit frustrated, but it will give the youngster some protection against that development.

The more you think of it, the more dangerous it seems to let a kid be subjected to his home environment. When a juvenile goes wrong, you can almost always trace his trouble to the family, or some member of it. You'll find there's too much affection there, or too little affection. The kid's given too much pocket money or not enough. He suffers from over-indulgence or neglect. His folks just don't know the whys or wherefores of behaviorism, or if they do, they're out lecturing on the subject and haven't time to apply it.

At all events, raising children is a full-time job. A father, if he does it adequately, shouldn't have to turn out to make a living at the same time. And how is a mother going to get her chores done if she's spending enough hours on doing the right thing by the offspring?

Processing the child would fix that all up. It's work for the specialist.

Funny, though, isn't it, how many youngsters seem to grow up into decent citizens in spite of parents who just don't understand these things?

Red Proposal Talk Subject

U.N. And Communists Agree To Start Meet On Foe's Suggested Plans To Bring Peace

United Press Staff Correspondent

PANMUNJOM, Korea, Feb. 8 (UP)—The United Nations and the Communists agreed today to begin talks today on a Red proposal for a high-level conference to seek peace in the Far East.

The full truce delegations will assemble at 8 p.m. today to take up the Communist proposal under the fifth and final item on the Korean armistice agenda.

The Red plan, submitted two days ago, calls for a U.N.-Communist political conference within 90 days of a Korean armistice to discuss the withdrawal of all foreign troops in Korea and a general Far Eastern peace settlement.

The Communists indicated they wish to bring up at the post-armistice conference the future of Formosa, Indo-China, Malaya and Burma as well as of Korea.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, head of the U.N. armistice delegation, sent a message to the Reds accepting the proposal as a basis of discussion. He suggested the talks start Saturday and the Reds promptly agreed.

TO OPPOSE SUGGESTION

Joy is expected to oppose the Communist suggestion that the conference be confined to five North Korean and Chinese Communist government representatives and five U.N. delegates on grounds this would exclude South Korea, which is not a member of the U.N.

He also may insist that the conference be confined to the future of Korea.

The decision to open talks on the Communist proposal was the only agreement to emerge from the latest series of armistice meetings at Panmunjom.

Staff officers trying to agree on supervision of a truce made no tangible progress. The U.N. spent most of the time persuading the Communists that there is no connection between Allied proposals on troop rotation and on neutral inspection of ports of entry.

"I think they understand our views a little better now," U.N. spokesman, Col. Dan O. Darrow, said.

But the Allies failed to persuade the Reds to raise their offer to permit the replacement of 25,000 troops a month during a truce or to increase beyond three the ports through which the replacements would enter South Korea.

U.N. staff officers in another meeting accused the Communists of planning to dole out Allied war prisoners in small groups until the Allies have completed the delivery of 132,000 Communist prisoners.

"They don't want to give all of their back until we give them all of ours," said Col. George W. Hickman of the U.N.

Reds, because they claim to hold only 11,599 Allied prisoners, complete delivery within 30 days, while the U.N. would take 60 days to hand over its 132,000 prisoners.

Chinese Co. Tsai Cheng Wan said the Reds could not agree to different time limits.

No Established Procedure Recognized For Crowning Date Of Queen Elizabeth

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth probably will be crowned some time between August and the spring of 1953. But court officials do not start thinking about the coronation until well after the late King's funeral.

Nor does British history help. There is no set interval, some British kings have waited several years, others only a few months, before going down to Westminster Abbey to have the crown placed on their heads.

There is only one fixed rule—it cannot take place until court mourning for the dead monarch is over.

There is a second principle—colorful uniforms and keeps the crowds away.

Secreds Ready Resources For Election War

E. O. Duke was elected Thursday night as president of the newly-formed constituency organization of the Social Credit League of Victoria.

The constituency body will function to co-ordinate activities of two Social Credit groups now functioning here.

W. L. Fahey was named first vice-president of the organization; R. B. Shaw, second vice-president, and J. W. Moraes, third vice-president. A secretary will be named later.

The meeting decided to sponsor a Social Credit meeting in Saanich on Feb. 13.

was decreed by King Edward VIII when King George V died 16 years ago.

If Queen Elizabeth chooses the same period in memory of her father, no coronation ceremony could be held before the winter chill descends on London.

So, citizens are guessing, the coronation ceremony and the long parade which accompanies it most likely would be put off until the spring. But if the mourning is only six months it still would be possible to stage the lavish display by August.

In Second Spot With Forecast

By DON INGHAM
George I. Warren, with a brilliant forecast on Thursday, jumped to second place in the contest of amateur weather prognosticators who are attempting to prove that laymen know something about the weather, too.

William Mackie, weather officer at Gonzales Observatory, is still a bit in the lead.

Following closely behind Warren are Rebel Mowat and Ald. Waldo Skillings. Pat Sinnott, a long-shot artist, is trailing.

The following forecasts will be the last in the contest. On Saturday the winner will be announced with suitable fanfare, and will be proclaimed "All-High Weather Forecaster."

Here are the last efforts of the five contestants:

GEORGE WARREN

Bright, cooler, sunshine, resulting in rapid growth of crocuses and daffs. Weather conducive to working in gardens, playing golf. Light winds this evening, showers tonight.

REBEL MOWAT

Clear, warm, and sunny. Following old adage of "rainy Friday, rainy Sunday," and vice versa, whole week-end will be warm and pleasant for gardening.

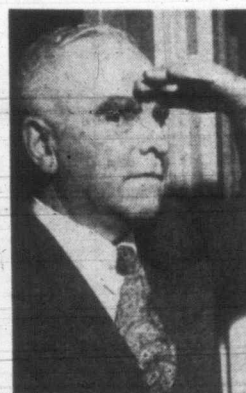

WILLIAM MACKIE

Cloudy today, a sprinkle of rain tonight, cloudy and a bit of rain Saturday. Winds light today, easterly 20 m.p.h. Saturday. Temperatures from 40 to 47.

WALDO SKILLINGS

Fair and bright in afternoon, with storm warning for late today—plenty hot air rising—council meeting.

PAT SINNOTT

Sultry—a typical Victoria day and evening. I will either make a life-time reputation on this forecast or get out of the business altogether.

Island Herds Good But Miss Top Spot

Five Southern Vancouver Island herds qualified for the B.C. Dairy-men's annual "ton of fat" contests this year, but top honors went to Cloverdale dairyman J. L. Cosens.

They were P. E. Wilford, Sooke; G. A. Swan and Sons, Oak Street, Victoria; R. W. Mercer, R.R. 4, Victoria; D. W. McLennan, 209 Helmcken Road, Victoria, and R. Rendle and family, 3573 Richmond Avenue.

The recent annual meeting at Nanaimo urged retention of price controls on retail prices in Vancouver. Delegates felt abolition of the controls would be disastrous to all B.C. producers.

Mourners Will File Past King

LONDON, Feb. 8 (Reuters).—Starting Tuesday at 8 a.m., the first of perhaps 1,000,000 mourners will shuffle past a towering dais in Westminster Hall here on which will lie in state the body of King George VI.

The Royal coffin will be brought to London Monday from Sandringham, where the King died. It will be taken to Westminster Hall, part of Westminster Palace which contains the House of Commons, where it will lie in state until the funeral, Friday.

Westminster Hall will be open to the public between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m. until Thursday night, and, if the death of King George V is anything to go by, more than 1,000,000 Britons will pay their respects during these times.

They will file slowly past a dais rising in five stages from a low platform 42 feet long. The last step will bear the late monarch's coffin which, draped with the Union Jack, will bear his crown. Made of pine from British Columbia, the dais will be covered with black and mauve velvet. Four eight-foot candles will burn, one at each corner, and by the King's head a cross of burnished gold will stand.

Guardsmen in full-dress uniform will mount guard at each corner of the dais; their heads bowed over reversed arms. Yeomen of the Guard from the Tower of London will have their parts in the solemn day and night vigil.

Faure Stays By Slim Vote

PARIS, Feb. 8 (AP).—The three-week-old government of Premier Edgar Faure won a slim 292-275 vote of confidence early today in the National Assembly.

The issue, a procedural one, was whether the parliament should consider at once the premier's proposal for a guaranteed wage scaled to the cost of living. The Assembly voted to take up the issue. But the narrow margin meant the test on the bill itself, probably this week-end, would be critical.

Faure, heading a coalition government of moderate and right-wing parties, wants to give the government one month's time to increase the minimum wage 5 per cent after prices make such a rise. The powerful Socialists backed the scheme, but Conservative Deputies oppose the "escalator clause" of the bill as inflationary.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8 (AP).—Two "Molotov cocktail" bombs were found with smoldering fuses Thursday night on a window sill of a high school in north Philadelphia, where authorities have been investigating reports of a "Hitler youth movement."

Firemen and police quenched the make-shift bombs before they could go off. The discovery was made less than a half-hour after the end of a regular meeting of an association of students' fathers.

Labor Retains Seat At Leeds

LEEDS, Eng., Feb. 8 (AP).—The Labor party has retained its House of Commons seat for the Leeds Southeast division, complete returns from Thursday's by-election show.

Labor's Denis W. Healey polled 17,194 votes to Conservative C. E. Kirwin's 9,995.

The seat became vacant by the elevation to the peerage of Labor member James Milner.

Outcome of the by-election leaves the Conservatives with a 26-seat margin over Labor.

The standing: Conservatives and associates, 321; Labor, 295; Liberal, 6; Irish National, 2; Irish Liberal, 1.

Fire battalion chief Edward Lutz said the smoldering fuses had scorched the sill but caused no other damage.

Authorities today received reports that handbills had been distributed near the school inviting membership in the reputed organization. No student could be found who had seen such a circular.

Winnie Ruth Judd Surrenders After Undergoing Face-Lifting Operation

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 8 (UP).—Tiger woman Winnie Ruth Judd escaped scalp murderess, rapped meekly on the door of the Arizona State mental hospital superintendent Thursday night and surrendered.

She had undergone a face-lifting operation during her five days of "hounded" freedom.

Authorities said friends had carted her from "place to place" to keep ahead of her pursuers.

Mrs. Judd was limping as a result of leg and foot injuries received when she fell during her escape last Saturday—her fifth getaway since her confinement for murdering her two best friends.

She was immediately given a sedative and put to bed.

Her surrender was arranged at a secret conference between Dr. M. W. Conway, hospital superintendent, and two unidentified men. Deputy Sheriff Herb Barnes sat in on the negotiations but he was sworn to secrecy as to what transpired.

There were reports that Mrs. Judd, a 48-year-old redhead, would be permitted to testify before the Maricopa County Grand Jury—a long-cherished dream of the trunk murderess.

Conway denied that this figured into her reasons for returning, although she said she "think she'd relish the chance."

"She gave no reason for coming back," Conway said. "I imagine she was just hounded until she thought she might as well give up. She knew the search was getting hot."

Conway hinted that elaborate plans for her future had gone awry, including a plot to spirit her out of the United States.

"I suppose her friends realized it would be impossible to carry out their plans for her to leave the country," Conway said.

Attendant Gladys Vaughn said that despite the face-lifting operation Mrs. Judd had undergone, she was not wearing any bandages when she came back.

Conway refused to name the doctor who performed the operation.

However, Miss Vaughn said Winnie Ruth had a swollen ankle, knee and foot injuries suffered in her escape.

Using a home-made rope she fashioned from restraining bonds used for violent patients, Mrs. Judd lowered herself from her third-floor room. But 10 or 15 feet from the ground, the rope broke and she fell the rest of the way.

Concerning the negotiations for her return, the deputy sheriff would say only that the two unidentified men were from Phoenix and they were well-dressed and respectable. He would not name them.

Threshold Of A New Age

AT THIS TIME OF DEEP SORROW, the Commonwealth and other parts of the world look upon Queen Elizabeth II with compassion and sincere sympathy for a daughter, who has lost a revered father. In the days immediately ahead she will be required to perform traditional duties, meeting the demands of state and accepting her responsibilities as befits a sovereign.

On her slender shoulders fall the burden of human distress and the weight of monarchy. Such has been the future ordained for her since her father assumed the crown. Inevitably it was her role to step forward, in time of personal grief, and accept those tasks which the King discharged so nobly and so courageously. It is, in part, the courage she has inherited from him which will sustain her in their performance.

The young woman who won Canada's deep affection so recently on her triumphal tour, and who has become Canada's Queen with tragic suddenness, begins her reign with the full-hearted devotion of her people. As the poignancy of her loss diminishes, the inspiration of her presence in the Commonwealth and the world.

She ascends the throne at a time when the institution of British monarchy has lent some steadiness to an unstable world. Yet it is a time, too, in which Britain has yielded, through wounds of war, her prime leadership in world affairs. She is Queen of a people in Britain who know only too keenly the rigors of austerity. She and her family have been deeply aware of the serious conditions confronting those people.

There can be little doubt in her mind of the anxieties which beset them in these troubled days when peace is inconclusive. Nor can she be unaware of the grim, hard road ahead Britain is struggling back to a more reasonable living.

Yet of one fact she has abundant evidence. She reigns now over a people in whom tradition—a tradition the monarchy has helped to preserve—has implanted steadfastness and perseverance, and the will to fight through to the end.

She ascends the throne, too, as Queen of Canada at a time when this country is continuing to make mature strides towards ever-growing strength and importance in the world. She sees here, as she could probably see nowhere else in the world, a nation growing new sinews, finding fuller confidence and assuming a position of greater respect and influence among other nations.

From her recent tour, the Queen took back to Britain an appreciation of Canada that was not limited to the impressive sights she saw, nor to the demonstrations of loyalty afforded her, but was inspired by a people warm in friendliness and a nation sure in its future.

Through her, and the earnest pledge of fealty given to the Crown, the ties between Britain and the new Commonwealth partner have been fastened more securely, not in rigid bonds that will snap under strain, but in a pliable association that has withstood past pressures and will withstand others in the future.

What she has seen, and what she has attained in Canada, she will see and attain among other members of the family of nations—a family whose relationships are so baffling to outside observers, but are so strongly felt by its own members.

It is not the moment, now, to parade these facts, though they must be known unconsciously to the Queen. Yet, beyond the sadness of today, they are important elements in the new Elizabethan Age, an age far different from that of the Queen who bore that name, but one rich in promise despite present dangers.

B.C. In Parliament

BRITISH COLUMBIA HOLDS 18 seats in the House of Commons. On the basis of its present population it is entitled to 22. It should hold those seats in the next Parliament, to be elected probably about 18 months hence.

Presumably the federal government intends to introduce a redistribution bill at the forthcoming parliamentary session. It would be based on the last census which shows a great shift in Canada's population and, among other things, a growth in British Columbia about twice the national average.

Since provinces are represented in Parliament according to population, British Columbia will gain 4 seats, more than any other province. Alberta apparently will gain 1, Saskatchewan will lose 5 and Manitoba will lose 1. British Columbia thus would become in political strength, as already it is in economic, the third province of the nation.

This apparently does not suit some of the prairie politicians. They would like Saskatchewan to retain through the next election its present standing in Parliament, despite its relative drop in population. Therefore it would suit these influences to postpone the redistribution bill for a year or two and let Canadians vote once more by the existing arrangements, in defiance of the census and the usual parliamentary practice.

We do not suppose that the government is foolish enough to listen to such advice but in case it is not giving the matter sufficient thought, it should understand right away that British Columbia will never agree to see its claims to larger representation stalled by political manoeuvres.

This province deserves 22 seats in the Commons and if they are denied will certainly blame the government and take its resentment out on Liberal candidates. It is difficult to imagine the government placing itself in this position to suit some of its prairie supporters.

Redistribution can be arranged by a committee of Parliament—the practice always used in the past—or by a non-partisan commission, as now proposed by Mr. C. G. Power, one of the elder statesmen of the Commons. Either way, the job will take months. The business of drawing electoral boundary lines is extremely complicated even if no partisan motives are at work.

There is, much to be said for the commission method which lifts redistribution out of any suspicion of party politics, but the question is whether a commission could complete its report during the present year and enable Parliament to pass a redistribution bill before the next election.

The commission must be set up immediately if it is to finish its work in time. The government will have to decide immediately whether to recommend a commission or a committee to Parliament so that one or the other can begin its studies by spring at latest.

However the redistribution is arranged it must be finished in the 1953 session of Parliament, which presumably will be followed by an election. British Columbia will watch these proceedings vigilantly and demand representation by population.

Over The Hills And Far Away

THE OTTAWA CITIZEN, THAT worthy pillar of journalism in the national capital, has taken exception to sentiments expressed some time ago in these columns relative to escape from the drudgery of life.

We had praised the decision of a Warwickshire goat farmer to turn his back on the goat houses and their inmates, shake from his feet the dust of goatdom, and set off in search of the lost fortress city of the Queen of Sheba. We saw him as fulfilling the dreams which all of us cherish but which so pitifully few ever implement, and we lauded his courage in stepping from the rut of everyday living to climb the heights of romance and adventure.

Not so, says The Citizen. Goat-raising is as fundamental and as satisfying as hunting for treasure or ruins. Goats demand more fortitude than does the Queen of Sheba. Only the weak forsake their duty and go adventuring, with write-ups in the daily press.

Our contemporary has a nice point there. It may indeed be argued that it takes bravery to endure in obscurity the plodding routine of life as the "little man" lives it; to glimpse the soaring towers from afar and return the eyes dutifully to the tasks at hand; to breathe the exotic breeze with its faint suggestion of incense, sandalwood and exciting spices, and reject it for the familiar tang of the goat house.

But is it indeed duty that so constrains him? Or is it fear? Does the victim not succumb to the second and greater of two terrors—fear of monotony and fear of the unknown? What virtue can there be in the love of duty of a man for whom even a ride in a strange bus holds anxieties, who would not venture into an unaccustomed barber shop for an all-gold in Shabwa?

Most men, said Thoreau, lead lives of quiet desperation. Why desperation? That is not the state of mind of a man courageously hoeing his row, or, as The Citizen suggests, shovelling his walk. The desperation stems from conflict—the mental struggle engendered by man's inherent urge to swagger over the hill and slay a dragon, and the restraining fear that instead sends him meekly to the barn to feed the goats. The strong stay home, says the Ottawa paper, and we admit it takes strength. But the strongest march away.

A Job For Parents

SOME WEEKS AGO POLICE CHIEF John Blackstock addressed a brief suggestion to Greater Victoria adults. He was discussing an outbreak of juvenile crime and he said: "A little more supervision on the part of the parents would be appreciated and save them and their children trouble in the future."

The chief's words were restrained, probably too restrained. Conceivably he phrased his proposal mildly in recognition of the excellent job of child-raising most parents do in this community. The point has been made before, and bears repetition, that the great majority of youth here is decent, honest and not much noisier than present-day parents were at a similar age.

At the same time, a minority, and it is comparatively small, is guilty of acts that disgust the community and cause substantial loss.

The argument can be advanced that such social misfits are the products of their times. The argument is only as good as parents allow it to be. Certainly some youngsters received inadequate training during wartime, when a father was away from home with the services and when a mother was busy with war work. Probably no part of this continent entirely escaped conditions which developed the "latch-key kid."

These are exceptions that do not qualify the remarks of the chief of police. Honesty and decency are best learned in the home and they are learned at an age preceding the late teens, when boys, almost young men, decide to chart their own courses.

Too frequently crimes are reported that could be the early, fumbling efforts of young people headed toward a type of life which will eventually exact a heavier toll on society and in all probability end with the culprits in prison. Burglaries and break-ins are not pranks. They are calculated crimes for gain.

The situation gives point to the remarks of Police Chief Blackstock a few days ago. The warning is clear enough, the advice is sound.

Restraining The Bridge Burners

By WALTER LIPPMANN,
from Washington

HAROLD NICOLSON once said that the art of diplomacy, as that of water colors, has suffered much from the fascination which it exercises upon the amateur. In Washington today there is one way of identifying easily the amateur who causes our suffering diplomacy to suffer unnecessarily. He is the man who feels that he ought to announce publicly and in no uncertain terms what the government will do and what it will never do on all issues in all quarters of the globe.

He cannot seem to understand that the more rigidly he binds our own government the more he reduces its influence, the more he diminishes its power to negotiate—that the more he sets our own policy on one unalterable course, the more numerous the options among which our antagonists and rivals can choose their course.

THESE are the amateurs, some of them wearing uniforms, who think they can solve the Far Eastern problem by a series of public commitments.

They would like to announce what the Air Force will do, what the Navy will do, if an armistice in Korea is signed and is then broken, if an armistice is not signed and is not broken, if Indo-China is invaded by the Chinese, if Indo-China is infiltrated by the Chinese, if Indo-China is supplied a little, if it is supplied more than a little, from China.

They would like to cross all the bridges over all the rivers ahead of them and to burn them all behind them. They believe that the way to impress your enemy is to go Wilson—with his open covenants openly arrived at—one better, and to plump for open war plans openly arrived at.

WHAT they succeed in doing in their claim for public commitments of this kind is (a) to embarrass the serious and well-informed soldiers and civilians who know what it would mean and what it would cost to make good on all these threats; (b) to alienate great multitudes of the people of Asia and of Europe who fear and distrust a nation which talks so much and on so many different occasions about the terrible destruction and human agony it can and may cause; (c) to imprison our diplomacy in the formula of all-or-nothing—in a self-inflicted straitjacket where it can do nothing by negotiation because that is by definition appeasement and it can do nothing by the big threats because that, in their own sober second thoughts, is suicide.

IN DEALING with allies and friends their idea is that the great victories and the splendid triumphs are those obtained by ringing declarations of affectionate loyalty which have been signed on the dotted line. They want every country to stand up, to line up, and to be counted, in Moscow as well as in Washington.

They cannot imagine any longer how any decent country in the world could have the same foreign policy which the United States had from the time of George Washington to Pearl Harbor. They cannot see how that country might have such a policy for the same reasons that we had it, because it is too weak and too exposed, and because its interests are too separate, to entangle itself in the alliances of the great powers.

THEY have not understood how often those who sign up the most easily, who proclaim themselves the most loudly, are the very ones which it is least prudent to count upon. The cynical and the corrupt will shrug their shoulders and sign anything quickly, if that is the quickest way to get the money. These clients and hangers-on should not be mistaken for true allies, much less for the independent states whose confidence and respect it must always be our object to have and to hold.

THERE is no reason to doubt that all of this, or at least much of it, is actuated by the best of intentions. Those who want to leave the Communists in no doubt whatever about our reaction to any one of the great lessons of the two world wars; namely, that if Germany had known America would intervene at once and on a grand scale, she would not have begun those wars.

They are right in insisting that Moscow and Peking should not think that we would have a long and interminable debate about whether we would intervene against military aggression.

Where they go wrong is in wanting to specify how we would intervene, in wishing to publish what is tantamount to a blueprint of the horrors that would follow our intervention.

THAT is to cross the thin, the subtle, but the fateful line between a guaranty and a threat, and between a diplomatic strategy which is designed to deter and one that is calculated to terrorize. It is in the region of that line that the amateurs need most particularly to be restrained, indeed to hold their tongues and be silent. For a great power can be deterred, and believe that and therefore it has nothing to gain by war and everything to lose. But, if a great power is terrorized, it may come to believe that war is inevitable, and that everything depends on not losing it.

Shock

G.V.F. in The Montreal Star

Americans by and large spent many years regarding themselves as friends of an India ground down by British imperialist pressures. They have not yet recovered from the shock of discovering that the free and independent India of today fears the United States more than any other country on earth.

Hoping For The Worst

Under Our Roof

By JOHN RHODES STURDY

NOW that Col. S. Skeffington-Smuts (Ret.) and his bride Anastasia (nee Wiggs-Wiggs) have left on their honeymoon in Esquimaux, things are comparatively quiet around the old homestead.

Of course there is still Hamish, while Little Augie continues to manufacture his extra special pale home brew in daytime and carries on his furtive business transactions by night, yet the house is a little less crowded and my family and I are sleeping indoors for a change. Very peaceful.

At least that was the case up until yesterday. It was yesterday that our small son came down to breakfast and announced that he had been bitten during the night.

"Who bit you?" I demanded furiously. "Nobody's going to bite a son of mine and get away with it!"

"Watch your blood pressure, Pop," the small fry said. "It's only a little bite. Here, look!"

Well, it seemed he had been bitten all right. "Probably a mosquito," I suggested, trying to pass the whole thing off as nothing. But I could see the horror in my wife's eyes. She rushed the boy into a bath and I could smell carbolic soap and maybe turpentine.

"It happens in the best of families," Hamish remarked philosophically. He eyed me. "What are you scratching for?" "I'm not! Now listen, Hamish, we've got to get to the bottom of this. Something is biting my son. Let's go and take his room apart."

"You know," said Hamish half an hour later, "I think it's ants."

Well, I knew the answer to that one. I dashed downstairs to the kitchen and grabbed hold of Little Augie. "The house is full of ants!" I shouted. "And you're the cause of it. You and that sickly home brew you make. All that brown sugar and malt—that's what the ants are after. And on their way to get it they're stopping to bite my son." Little Augie burst into tears, but I was so angry I didn't care. For once I completely ignored his sensitive soul and let him run out of the house—I just didn't care.

My wife came into the kitchen and I turned to her. "Dearest—" I began.

"Don't you dearest me!" she screamed. "It's all your fault. You and your precious guests. Filling my house with them. It's your fault that my poor little boy is being bitten to death!"

"Oh, pipe down!" "Oh—how dare you talk to me like that, you—vampire! I'm taking my son with me and we're leaving right now. I wouldn't spend another minute in this house with you."

It was at this point that Hamish appeared. "Pardon me," he said. "I'll be back later." And he walked out the door.

"Darling—" "But my wife was gone, too, and the small son with her."

Well, of course, in the end I went looking for them. I found my wife and child in the village and after a lot of persuasion and crow-eating I managed to get them to return with me and try to start a new life together. And on the way back we came across Little Augie, sitting on the side of the road, sobbing, and I convinced him, too.

There was a large sign tacked on our gate.

"Danger," it said. "These premises are under fumigation. Beware of poisonous gases. (Signed) Hamish, pest-control expert and official exterminator."

So we spent the night in the shed. And it was some time during the wee hours of the morning that the small son piped up: "Hey, Ma, Pop—I'm being bitten again!"

We lit a lantern hurriedly and inspected him. There were a lot of red spots on his tummy, and suddenly my wife looked across at me.

"Hives," she said almost humbly.

Well, that's what they were, but just try and convince the neighbors. They saw Hamish's sign. Now, when I go into the village, I notice that people try not to get too close.

Old Custom

The Printed Word

Gregory the Great, who became pope in the year 590, is credited with the origin of a custom that has endured for more than 13 centuries. At the time of his accession a plague was raging in Rome, with many deaths occurring daily. As the early symptoms of the disease were fits of sneezing and yawning, Gregory decreed that a blessing should be pronounced whenever a person sneezed and that the sign of the cross should be made over the mouth of anyone who yawned.

Whether this measure had any therapeutic value or not, the epidemic ceased, and the first part of Gregory's decree survives in the custom of saying "God bless you!" or its equivalent when a person sneezes. History does not relate when the second part of the decree fell into disuse, but it may be conjectured that this occurred with the rise of the after-dinner speaker.

The custom of making crosses over the yawning mouths would lead to more commotion than was seemly in a captive audience. Or it may be that the mannerly habit of covering the yawning mouth is a relic, now without religious significance, of the great pope.

OLD AGE PENSION

Some of your correspondents about this matter state that this pension will only be paid to Canadian citizens. Undoubtedly many others think likewise. Some of them probably amongst the 4,000 in B.C. who have not yet applied for receipt of said pension.

They are mistaken. Any resident of Canada, who has lived here 20 years, is entitled to said pension. It will help some, Mr. Editor, if you will print this. I, myself, got my first hint about this some time ago from a letter in your columns from a former social security worker.

SMELLS AS SWEET?

Name-changing is a convenient device for blotting out historic memories inimical to long-term totalitarian aims. "Call Persia Persia," not Iran," Mr. Churchill is reported to have heatedly told the Mother of Parliaments some years ago. Presumably Mr. Churchill would have no legitimate cause for objection had this change been the act of the Persian government of that time—but this name-changing was the act of an international gang.

Encyclopedia says "Iran" is derived from "Aryan," that it was so named in mythological times.

For some obscure reason I've always disliked the word "Aryan," possibly on account of its association with historic humbug—even before Hitler so diabolically associated this word with anti-Semitism.

English newspapers, to their lasting credit, call Persia "Persia." It would be refreshing if this newspaper would do the same.

LOVES DEMOCRACY

Recent news in your paper to the effect that the United States singer, comrade Paul Robeson has been held in Seattle by the United States authorities after having been intercepted in an attempt to leave the United States to visit one of his Red cronies in Canada shows that at least the United States government is awake to the menace which his ilk hold for the cause of democracy, and for this awakening, even if long belated, they are to be congratulated.

The unfortunate part of this matter is that it should have fallen on the U.S. authorities to keep this Red gentleman out of Canada. What is the matter with the security regulations in force (?) in Canada that such a Moscow-minded comrade should have free access to our country?

If events in which comrade Robeson has participated in Moscow, Paris and various parts of the United States were not sufficient to indicate the menace inherent in aliens of his kind then surely his past performances on the concert stage in Canada should have been more than sufficient for Canadian authorities to raise the "not-wanted" sign.

This lackadaisical attitude is on a par with the permission which apparently is still extended to the embassy employees of the U.S.S.R. in Ottawa to roam all over this country . . . as witness the recent appearance of a Kremlin slunk at the local trial of some lawbreaker. The writer understands that Canadian, American, British, etc. embassy members in Moscow are limited to a 30-mile area in which to observe the activities of the Red paradise.

Ups And Downs

"IN A WAY," said the Elevator Man, "I guess we're all guinea pigs of one kind or another. In an age that depends on experiment as much as we do, it's pretty hard to avoid being used now and then as the subject of tests. Manufacturers pick selected communities to try out their new products. Politicians pick audiences, to try their new ideas on, or to see if their old ideas will still be swallowed. We use each other. Joe Doakes tries out a new story on his bus neighbor before springing it on the office crowd. Mrs. Doakes gets the okay from the bridge club on her new hat before sailing out into the main channel with it at a big reception. And Junior tries out some new dodge on Mum before attempting to put it over on Dad. Even nations do it. Small wars provide excellent opportunities to try out weapons that will be needed in big wars. You might say the whole world is based on the guinea pig system, with the global motto: Try it on the dog. Lower main!"

"Of course," said the Elevator Man, "a lot of people object. They don't like, say, the idea of a cat being used in experiments to discover cures for babies' ailments. And you can't blame them. No decent person likes to think of suffering being inflicted on any living creature, or of lives being cut off before their time. But concern for the babies is likely to win out over concern for the cats. And in any case you can hardly say that the human race discriminates against cats. We do things to our fellow man that no one would dream of inflicting on a cat. We're very fair about it—in a sort of a way. Going down!"

"It helps a lot," said the Elevator Man, "if the guinea pig is willing. But it's a role that you may not live long to enjoy. People these days can't be blamed if they feel a little like the official taster in the days of the Borgias, when poison in the soup was a constant threat. Steady, this may hurt a little," they're told, as somebody tries out a new bomb, or a new trade policy, or a new tax, and they're apt to get a little restive. They're in something the spot of the husband who said, 'You'll never make that dog obey you,' and the wife replied, 'Nonsense. It only needs patience. I had a lot of trouble with you at first.'"

New Promotion Plan Approved By V.F.D. Men

Change in promotional system and a 62-year retirement age for the chief is approved in Victoria Fire Department's annual report made known Thursday.

Retirement age for the chief at present is 60 years. Recommendations for the changes were made by the B.C. Underwriters' Association after a survey of the department last year.

Acting Fire Chief F. W. Briers attached the recommendations to his annual report and stated he concurred "in so far as funds are available for the necessary implementation."

The Underwriters recommended that the promotional system be based on examination as well as seniority and record, to enable younger men to become officers with resulting longer terms in senior ranks.

"Retirement should be at 62 except in cases of unusual efficiency," the Underwriters felt.

VICTORIA'S SUNSHINE RECORD TO DATE, 1952—55.7 HOURS

SYNOPSIS: Storm activity in the eastern Pacific continues to cause strong winds and rain over the more northern sections of the B.C. coast and cloudy skies over the remainder of the province. With a gradual trend to the south and east of this activity, it is expected that in the next 36 hours precipitation will spread to other sections of the province. Gales which are now occurring along the north coast will slacken today as one storm moves inland but are expected to develop again tonight as another storm moves toward the coast.

Temperatures will continue mild throughout the province as the flow of moist maritime air persists.

REGIONAL FORECASTS VALID UNTIL MIDNIGHT SATURDAY

VICTORIA: Cloudy with a few showers tonight. Cloudy Saturday, with intermittent rain through the morning and afternoon. Little change in temperature. Winds east 20 Saturday. Low tonight and high Saturday, 40 and 47.

WEST COAST: Nearly continuous rain tonight and Saturday. Continues mild. Winds southeast 15 overnight, increasing again to southeast 20 Saturday morning. Low tonight and high Saturday at Port-Vancouver, 38 and 45.

GEORGIA STRAIT: Intermittent rain tonight and Saturday. Continues mild. Winds southeast 20 overnight. Low tonight and high Saturday at Nanaimo, 38 and 45.

CANADIAN PACIFIC: Intermittent rain tonight and Saturday. Continues mild. Winds southeast 20 Saturday afternoon. Low tonight and high Saturday at Vancouver Airport and Abbotsford, 38 and 45.

False Alarms Harassing Firemen Trough Year

Victoria Fire Department answered 92 false alarms in 1951, according to Acting Chief F. W. Briers' report, released at City Hall Thursday.

Of a total of 897 alarms, the greatest number, 287, involved chimney fires. Next on the list came grass and bush fires with 95 and then false alarms.

There were 66 alarms for rubbish fires; 60 calls were "service was not required"; 29 for smoke scares; 21 for smokers' carelessness.

Included in the calls was one for animals in distress; nine for children playing with matches; five for firecrackers; five for kitchen grease and 11 for locked rooms.

There are now 151 street fire alarm box installations. Included are six new one-recently installed at Richmond and Despard, Fort and Cook, Gorge and Balfour, Fairfield and Thurlow, Craigflower and Coventry, and Douglas and Francis.

Cope With Mourning Band Rush

OTTAWA, Feb. 8 (CP).—The Army headquarters' tailor came off leave and worked all Wednesday night and on into Thursday to cope with an order that all military officers should wear black armbands in mourning for the King.

Anticipating the rush, Sgt. J. H. Hall of Ottawa, halted his leave, bought many yards of black broadcloth at a store up-town, lined up several special assistants and went to work Wednesday night.

They were still working when the lines started to form early this morning, Sgt. Hall figured he had roughly 1,600 armbands to make on an average of two for every Army officer at headquarters. He charged 50 cents a pair, considerably cheaper than Navy and Air Force officers and some Army officers were paying for them uptown.

Korea Troops To Resume Rotation

OTTAWA, Feb. 8 (CP)—The rotation plan for 25th Brigade units in Korea will swing back into stride next month, the army announced Thursday. It should be completed by the end of June.

The system started last fall when the 1st Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry replaced the 2nd Battalion, Canada's originals in Korea.

The rotation plan calls for return to Canada of all soldiers who have served for 12 months in the Far East, soldiers in the units slated for replacement who are ineligible will be returned man for man on completion of 12 months.

No Monotony In Village Job

DEGRAFF, O., Feb. 8 (AP)—Virgil Farr won't lack for variety in his new job. The village council of this western Ohio community hired him Wednesday at a salary of $3,000 a year to be: 1. Police chief; 2. water superintendent; 3. street cleaner; 4. fire department janitor; and 5. city hall clean-up man.

Canadian Regiment and the Royal 22nd Regiment are to be replaced by the 1st Battalions of the same units, starting in late March and finishing in May.

The 57th Field Squadron, R.C.E., 54th Transport Company, R.C.A.S.C. and 25th Field Ambulance, R.C.A.M.C. will be relieved on a company group basis.

"C" Squadron of Lord Strathcona's Horse is to be replaced in June by another squadron from Calgary.

During April, May and June, batteries of the 2nd R.C.H.A. will embark for home and will be replaced by batteries of the 1st R.C.H.A.

Churchill Lauds King's Memory

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP)—This is the text of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's broadcast Thursday night on the death of King George VI and the ascension of Queen Elizabeth II:

My friends, when the death of the King was announced to us yesterday morning there struck a deep and solemn note in our lives which as it resounded far and wide stilled the clatter and traffic of 20th century life in many lands and made countless millions of human beings pause and look around them.

A new sense of values took for the time being possession of human minds. His mortal existence presented itself to so many at the same moment in its serenity and its sorrow, in its splendour and in its pain, in its fortitude and in its suffering.

The King was greatly loved by all his peoples. He was respected as a man and as a prince far beyond the many realms over which he reigned. The simple dignity of his life, his many virtues, his sense of duty—like as ruler and servant of the vast spheres and communities for which he bore responsibility—his gay charm and happy nature, his example as husband and father in his own family circle, his courage in war and peace and the serene aspects of his character which won a glint of admiration, now here, now there, from innumerable eyes whose gaze fell upon the throne.

We thought of him as a young naval lieutenant in the Battle of Jutland. We thought of him when calmly, when without ambition or want of self-confidence, he assumed the heavy burden of the Crown and succeeded his brother, whom he loved and to whom he had rendered perfect loyalty. We thought of him so faithful in his study and discharge of state affairs; so strong in his devotion to the enduring honour of our country, so self-restrained in his judgments of men and affairs; so uplifted above the clash of party politics yet so attentive to them, so wise and shrewd in judging between what matters and what does not.

WE SAW, ADMIRING... All this we saw and admired. His conduct on the Throne may well be a model and a guide to constitutional sovereigns throughout the world today and also in future generations.

The last few months of King George's life with all the pangs and physical stresses that he endured—his life hanging by a thread from day to day—and he all the time cheerful and undaunted—stricken in body but quite undisturbed and even unaffected in spirit—these have made a profound and an enduring impression and should be a help to all.

He was sustained not only by his natural buoyancy but by the sincerity of his Christian faith.

During these last months the King walked with death as if death were a companion, an acquaintance whom he recognized and did not fear. In the end death came as a friend and a happy day of sunshine and sport. After "good night" to those who loved him best, he fell asleep as every man and woman who strives to fear God and nothing else in the world may hope to do.

The nearer one stood to him the more these facts were apparent.

But the newspapers and photographs of modern times have made vast numbers of his subjects able to watch with emotion the last months of his pilgrimage. We all saw him approach his journey's end.

In this period of mourning and meditation amid our cares and toils every home in all the realms joined together under the Crown may draw comfort for to-night, and strength for the future, from his bearing and fortitude.

A UNITED FAMILY There was another tie between King George and his people. It was not only sorrow and affliction that they shared. Dear to the hearts and the homes of the people is the joy and pride of a united family. With all this the troubles of the world can be borne and all its ordeals at least confronted. No family in these tumultuous years was happier or loved one another more than the Royal Family around the King.

My friends, I suppose I'm sure—no minister saw so much of the King as I did. I made certain he was kept informed of every secret matter and the care and thoroughness with which he mastered the immense daily flow of state papers made a deep mark on my mind.

Let me tell you another fact. On one of the days when Buckingham Palace was bombed, the King had just returned from Windsor. One side of the courtyard was struck; and if the windows opposite out of which, by the grace of God, he and the Queen were looking had not been open, they would, both have been blinded by the broken glass instead of being only thrown back by the explosion.

Amid all that was then going on, although I saw the King so often, I never heard of this episode until a long time afterwards. Their Majesties never mentioned it or thought it of more significance than a soldier in their armies would of a shell bursting near him.

This seems to me to be a revealing trait in the Royal character. There is no doubt that all the institutions which have grown up among us over the centuries or sprung into being in our lifetime, the constitutional monarchy is the most deeply founded and dearly cherished by the whole association of our peoples.

MYSTERIOUS LINK In the present generation it has acquired a meaning incomparably more powerful than any one had dreamed possible in former times. The Crown has become the mysterious link, indeed I may say the magic link, which united our loosely bound but strongly interwoven commonwealth of nations, states and races.

Peoples who would never tolerate the assertions of a written constitution which implied any diminution of their independence are the foremost to be proud of their loyalty to the Crown.

We have been greatly blessed amid our many anxieties and in the mighty world that has grown up all around our small island, we have been greatly blessed that this new, intangible, inexpressible, but, for practical purposes, apparently all-powerful element of union, should have leaped into being among us.

How vital it is, not only to the future of the British Commonwealth and Empire but, I believe also, to the cause of world freedom and peace which we serve, that the occupant of the throne should be equal to the august and indefinable responsibilities which this supreme office requires.

For 15 years King George VI was king. Never at any moment in all the perplexities at home and abroad, in public or in private, did he fail in his duties. Well does he deserve the farewell salute of all his governments and peoples.

OUR HEARTS GO OUT My friends, it is at this time that our compassion and sympathy go out to his consort and widow. Their marriage was a love match with no idea of regal pomp or splendor. Indeed, there seemed to lie before them only the arduous life of royal personages, denied so many of the activities of ordinary folk and having to give so much in ceremonial public service.

May I say—speaking with all freedom—that our hearts go out tonight to that valiant woman with the famous blood of Scotland in her veins who sustained King George through all his toils and problems, and brought up with their charm and beauty the two daughters who mourn their father today.

May she be granted strength to bear her sorrow. To Queen Mary, his mother—another son is dead. The Duke of Kent having been killed in active service—there belongs the consolation of seeing how well the King did his duty and fulfilled his hopes, and of knowing how much he cared for her. Now I must leave the treasures of the past and turn to the future.

Famous have been the reigns of our queens. Some of the greatest periods in our history have unfolded under their sceptre.

ALREADY ACCLAIMED Now that we have a second Queen Elizabeth also ascending the throne in her 26th year, our thoughts are carried back nearly 400 years to the magnificent figure who presided over and, in many ways, embodied and inspired the grandeur and genius of the Elizabethan age.

Queen Elizabeth II, like her predecessor, did not pass her childhood in any certain expectation of the crown.

But already we know how well, and we understand why, her gifts and those of her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, have stirred the only part of our Commonwealth she has yet been able to visit.

She has already been acclaimed as Queen of Canada.

We make our claim, and others will come forward too, and tomorrow the proclamation of her sovereignty will command the loyalty of her native land and of all other parts of the British Commonwealth and Empire.

I, whose youth was cast in the august, unchallenged, and tranquil glories of the Victorian era, may well feel a thrill in evoking once more the prayer and anthem, God Save the Queen.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

Timmy the Flying Squirrel and his friends of his own kind are playful folk. They long ago learned how important play is in living. In this respect they are very like the Otter folk. You know Little Joe Otter dearly loves to play, and manages to get in a little play every day.

There is another way in which Timmy the Flying Squirrel and Little Joe Otter are very much alike. Both dearly love to slide. But their ways of sliding are very different. Timmy climbs to the top of a tall tree, jumps off and glides a long way to near the foot of another tree. What he is really doing is sliding on the air. Little Joe Otter finds a steep bank beside deep water, and makes himself a slippery slide. He climbs to the top of the bank, and

Boom Sweeps Weathermen In Its Wake

Canada's northern boom is taking the federal meteorological service along with it at a furious pace, Pat D. McTaggart-Cowan, assistant controller, Toronto, said here Thursday.

"Developments in Labrador, northern prairies, your own Kilmat, and expanding national defense are straining our service to the utmost," he said. "Any college graduate with mathematics and physics has a sure job with us."

He finished an eastern trip to all weather stations before Christmas, and is now winding up a western tour.

"I thumb rides on air lines going every which way," he laughed.

A regular airlift is running into the Hollinger-Ungava iron ore properties, he said, where five large aircraft fly 300 hours each per month.

"They now have nine airstrips, all one-way, and use castoring landing gear," the weather boss said. "It gives you a funny feeling to go up and down a runway sideways, but it means a lot to the operators."

SCOUTS AND CUBS AFIELD

Troops, Packs Will Mark Baden-Powell Birthday

By FREEMAN KING
Executive Scout Commissioner

February is a particularly busy month for those connected with scouting.

In addition to a number of special indoor events, several field trips have been scheduled and arrangements made for observance later in the month of the birthday of the late Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout Movement.

Last week-end, those enrolled in the scoutmasters' course took to the woods for instruction in mapping, tracking, axmanship, mountain climbing and emergency first aid.

Each man was required to light his own fire and cook his own dinner as part of the training.

Two members of the Lions Own Rover Crew recently set out on a three-day cross-country expedition. They reported a fine time and, despite the weather, enjoyed sleeping out.

Respect of all within the scouting movement here was won by two boys who ventured out on their first-class journey despite heavy rain. One was from the James Bay troop, the other from Gorge Vale.

Latest scouts to be invested

as Rover Scout are Harold Harrison and Jack McBay. Their investiture was made at a ceremony in Christ Church Cathedral, Bishop N. Hallward officiated.

Following the service, a reception was held in Scout Headquarters when district commissioner E. A. Estlin opened the new Rover den.

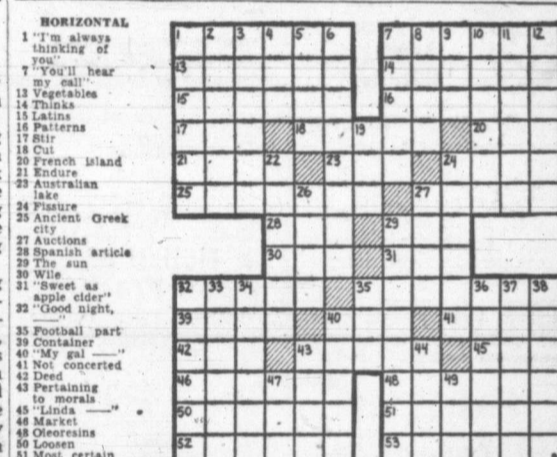

Further evidence of Scout growth in this area is the registering of a new Scout troop by the Belmont division.

Coming events: A bronze arrowhead course for patrol leaders will be held this week-end at Sidney for boys from Sidney, Royal Oak, Cordova Bay, Deep Cove and Saanichton. A Sidney group committee has agreed to feed the boys taking the course.

Everyone is invited to the scouts' Baden-Powell party to be held in the Marigold Scout Hall Feb. 23.

Boy Scouts Reach Membership Peak

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—The Boy Scouts of America reached an all-time membership peak last year, with 2,942,779 youngsters and adult leaders enrolled as of Dec. 31, officials reported recently.

Carried Shot For Sporting Monarch

The death of King George VI brings back memories to George Clayton, 60, of 2855 Gorge View Drive, of the monarch's boyhood days at Sandringham, the country estate of the Royal Family.

Clayton, a retired business man, served in the Royal post office at Sandringham before coming to Canada in 1913.

He served as post office messenger, postmaster and switchboard operator on the Royal estate when the King and his brothers played on Sandringham lawns. That was between 1908 and 1913.

Clayton also sang in the choir of the Sandringham parish church where the King now lies in state, before being moved to Westminster Hall.

"I knew Edward, now the Duke of Windsor, better than the late King," he said. "I often played football with Edward."

Plane Crash Kills Two At Slave Lake

EDMONTON, Feb. 8 (CP)—Two men were killed Thursday at Slave Lake, 165 miles north of here, when their single-engine Waco aircraft struck power lines on takeoff from the Slave Lake airport.

An official of Associated Airways, owners of the plane, identified the men as Victor Clark, 29, of Edmonton, pilot of the plane, and James Adamson of Calgary, a passenger.

Actor Arrested

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—John Buckmaster, 36-year-old Shakespearean actor, was arrested Thursday on a charge of felonious assault and illegal possession of weapons. He was sent to hospital for psychiatric observation.

One Of Monarch's Last Honors Won By Victoria Man

Rescue of a petty officer from drowning in Ganges harbor last August has resulted in an award for Sub-Lieut. W. J. Taylor, of Victoria.

He has received one of the last honors granted by the late King George VI—the King's commendation for brave conduct.

Taylor, a well-known athlete, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald B. Taylor, 2811 Tudor, and is attached to H.M.C.S. Malahat, Victoria naval reserve division.

Life at Sandringham was pleasant, Clayton said.

He said he carried shot for Edward VII and reigning foreign monarchs of the day at the numerous bird shoots held on the estate.

"Queen Alexandra was a mother to us all," he said. "Before I left she gave me a fine tartan rug."

Clayton said when he came to Canada he joined Lord Strathcona's Horse at the outbreak of the First World War.

A LEADING ROLE in the Gonzaga University, Spokane, Wash., production of the well-known melodrama, "On the Bridge at Midnight," will be played by Rod Pearce of Victoria. The play will be presented February 11, 12 and 13 in the Gonzaga University theatre.

Pearce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Pearce, 3114 Harriet Road, Victoria, B.C.

Soldier Committed On Murder Charge

PEMBROKE, Ont., Feb. 8 (CP)—Spr. Joseph Lanoie, 37-year-old officer's batman from Welland, Ont., Thursday was committed for trial on a charge of murder.

Spr. Lanoie was committed in connection with the New Year's Eve shooting of Spr. James Wesley Coherent, 21, of "Pine Falls," Man., in the officers' mess at the nearby Petawawa military camp.

He also is charged with the murder of another soldier, Craftsman C. E. Johansson, 20, of Saskatoon.

Union Seeking End Of Boycott

Furniture workers' section of Local 1598, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, has completed an agreement covering workers of Builders' Sash & Door Ltd. It is now seeking to have the joinery taken off the "we-do-not-patronize" lists of all unions in the area.

The carpenters have already contacted the executives of both Victoria labor councils to remove the boycott that has been on the firm for the last 18 months. It is understood both executives are prepared to recommend to their respective councils that they accede to the carpenters' request.

Executives of both councils have bucked attempts by the General Teamsters' Union, however, to lift the boycott on Stewart & Hudson Ltd., which is the parent company of Builders' Sash & Door.

Reason given by the councils for opposing the teamsters' request is that the teamsters negotiated a contract with the firm containing sub-standard conditions, particularly in respect to hours of work. The carpenters, at Builders' Sash & Door, have contracted for the union standard 40-hour week.

French Assembly Approves Changes

PARIS, Feb. 8 (AP)—The National Assembly Thursday approved changes in North Atlantic Treaty to accommodate the admission of Greece and Turkey. The vote was 511 to 101. The opposition votes were Communist. The bill still has to be approved by the council of the republic, but this is almost a formality.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Close to 500,000 feet of lumber for U.K. were loaded today on the Mount Athos, a Greek registry, at Ogden Point. She also carries 1,000 tons of grain, and will top off with more lumber at Port Alberni.

Capt. M. Scarsvell is master; King Bros. Ltd., agents, and Canadian Stevedoring stowed the cargo.

City Council today was asked to authorize expenditure of $1,343 for grading and planting of lawns and a minimum of flower beds and shrubbery on health and welfare building grounds, Cook Street.

Cost would be charged to the health and welfare building construction account.

Saanich court of revision opened today at Saanich municipal hall with 70 appeals to consider.

A length session is indicated since the court last year took three days to dispose of 29 appeals.

The court consists of the whole of the municipal council.

It is believed the large number of appeals this year is caused by the recent reassessment program in Saanich, whereby in the last year the assessor's department has brought properties throughout a large portion of the municipality into line with others.

Rotary Club members heard speaker Dr. Simon Marinker tell them Thursday "State medicine has no place in any free democracy."

He said it should be instituted and practised only in "those countries where the rights and privileges of the state have superseded the rights and privileges of the common man."

The speaker reviewed various plans for the future medical care of the Canadian public and said the essential difference lies in the methods of remuneration and the allocation of control.

Dr. Marinker said any national medical plan should be on a voluntary, free enterprise and, if possible, non-profit basis.

Lawyer Fights Court Order

An unusual appeal case was scheduled to come before the Appeal Court here late today.

It is the appeal of A. F. Dawe, Victoria lawyer, against a judgment of Mr. Justice Cline of Vancouver ordering him personally to pay the costs of a damage suit for acting as solicitor for a client of unsound mind.

The client was a Victoria woman who filed a damage suit against the North Vancouver General Hospital, Dr. J. Ross MacLean and two policemen, L. Clark and J. B. Apps of Vancouver. She claimed she was falsely arrested and taken to hospital.

The case never came up for trial because counsel representing defendants filed an application before Mr. Justice H. S. Wood in Vancouver for an inquiry into the ability of Dawe's client to instruct her solicitor. Mr. Justice Wood granted the application.

The inquiry was held before Mr. Justice Cline who ruled that Dawe's client was not only competent to give instructions but was suffering from a serious mental illness at the time the alleged case of action arose.

The justice said it should be for the solicitor to assess the ability of his client to instruct him, as well as the reliability of her instructions.

B.C.'s '52 Fisheries Yield Leaps Close To $69 Million

Total marketed value of British Columbia's fisheries products in 1950 amounted to $68,821,358, a $12,701,208 increase over 1949, according to the annual report of the provincial Department of Fisheries released today.

The principal species, as marketed in 1950, were salmon, with a value of $48,701,583; herring, with a value of $9,313,447, and halibut, with a value of $5,551,539. The salmon production in 1950

NO PLACE FOR PUSSY

College Campus Gags Charge Of 'Catnapping'

By R. E. PORTER

You want to start some trouble, son?

Go up Mount Tolmie way and make mewing noises on Victoria College campus when the undergraduates are around. Or go about calling "Puss, puss, puss," and tell them you're looking for your stolen cat.

Ever since Miss Dorothy Cox, member of Victoria's S.P.C.A., charged that College students were stealing pet cats a day or so ago, there has been a certain defensive reserve among biology students.

It seems the suggestion has been made that students are using these "catnapped" creatures for awful experiments in their biology lab.

So some of the students are going along with what they insist must be a "gag."

"Here's one of the cats we 'borrowed,'" one of the young men told The Times.

"We are going to dissect this meek little animal," he added.

One of them had the thing on a leash and one pushed from behind.

It was a large and ferocious.

TOWN GROWS ON ASBESTOS PLANT SITE

Big Development On B.C. Border

By BURKE CAHILL
Times Business Editor

A big, new asbestos plant will be opened in British Columbia by Cassiar Asbestos Corporation of Toronto it was learned today.

Valuable, extensive asbestos deposits, "in good supply and of high-grade quality," have been discovered and are being opened up near the British Columbia-Yukon border, company officials said.

A pre-designed town, with a population of nearly 1,000, will be built on McNamee Creek, about 750 air miles north of Victoria.

The company plans to build two mills, one to handle about 250 tons of raw materials a day from higher-grade deposits, the other to handle from 400 to 600 tons of normal grade asbestos ore per day. The first unit may be in operation by December.

Victoria contractors, manufacturers and distributors of building and construction materials hailed the new source of asbestos supply as a tremendous boost to this province's building and allied industries.

COSTS HAVE BEEN HEAVY
Business men here explained that costs of bringing in asbestos to B.C. widely used in the building trades, covering more than 200 types of products, has been heavy.

With the new source of supply in B.C., it was estimated that freight costs should be reduced to one-quarter of present rates.

Asbestos is used widely in the manufacturing of shingles, water pipes, roofing materials and hundreds of other allied products. Up to now, the only source of supply for B.C. construction has been in the big asbestos mines of Quebec.

Victoria building material suppliers stressed the wide possibilities for auxiliary manufacturing industries in B.C. following the big new source of asbestos supply, since the material is so extensively used.

seeming cougar which lives in an attic. While their crowded classmates watched, the undergraduates propped and dragged the protesting creature across the campus and posed with weapons by its side.

It's stuffed. Dead, you know.

New Fire Hall Urgent Need, Chief Reports

Underwriters Ask Immediate Action

Victoria urgently needs "a modern fire-resistive" No. 1 headquarters station.

In his annual report Thursday Acting Chief F. W. Briers strongly recommended replacement of the present building on Cormorant Street "as soon as funds are available."

He called also for addition of 20 men to the department's strength.

The chief, attached a report of the B.C. Underwriters' Association following a recent survey, in which it called for replacement immediately of the No. 1 station, at or near the present location.

"Interior of this building is of wood construction throughout and fire starting would make a hot, fast-burning fire which would endanger valuable equipment and surrounding property," Briers reported.

WOULD BE BREAKDOWN
"It would paralyze our whole fire alarm system, due to the fact that the alarm office is situated in the adjoining police station."

The chief said while a new station in Victoria West was desirable, a new headquarters building was more urgent.

Other recommendations included: Purchase of one new combination pumper; one additional mobile radio unit; promotion of W. Matthews to rank of captain in full charge of department pump operators, equipment and maintenance of fire stations; practise of increasing hose reserves be continued this year.

The underwriters' recommendations with which the chief concurred, "insofar as funds were available" included:

A fire boat; sympathetic replacement of obsolete apparatus; augmentation of the maintenance force to permit monthly testing of all alarm boxes and proper routine inspection and maintenance of all circuits.

FIGHT CONTROL BODY WANTED FOR VICTORIA

Would Regulate Ring And Pro Wrestling

Setting up of an athletic commission to regulate and supervise professional boxing and wrestling was recommended today at a meeting of the City Council.

Chief of Police John Blackstock recommended the move after Saturday night's disturbance at a wrestling match in the Armories, city solicitor Arthur Patton stated.

Patton asked council to authorize drafting of an amendment to the Municipal Act to pave way for such a commission.

NO PAY PLANNED

According to Patton it would serve without remuneration and duties would include:

Prescribing equipment and rules for conduct of professional boxing and wrestling; issuance of permits for exhibitions; pass upon and approve contracts; investigate conduct of any participant in exhibitions or contests.

Decision of the commission would be final and subject only to appeal to the City Council. The commission could restrain conduct or participation in contests, without prescribed permits.

"It is considered that wrestling as conducted in the city of Victoria at the present time should be definitely regulated and it is felt such a commission should be set up," Patton said.

"Authority for a by-law setting up such a commission is there fore requested."

City's health and welfare committee today recommended that council accept a bid from George Farmer to construct a retaining wall on the health and welfare grounds, Cook Street, at a cost of $300. The wall was recommended by the parks administrator and medical health officer.

HIGHER PAY, FEWER HOURS UNION AIMS

Higher pay and shorter hours are being sought by employees of the Empress Hotel in current negotiations with the C.P.R.

The workers are asking for a 20-cent-an-hour increase and reduction of the work week from the present 44 hours to 40 hours.

Employees are negotiating through the Empress division of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees. The last agreement between the union and company expired Jan. 1.

Bugles Still As Services Mourn Ruler

Men of the armed forces, while paying allegiance to their new queen, will observe a long period of mourning for the late King George VI.

The Navy will have no bands or bugles at colors or "sunset" until after the King's funeral, and drums, when carried, will be muffled. Officers will wear black arm bands.

Officers of the R.C.N. and R.C.N. Reserve will take new oaths of allegiance before "any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's forces."

Sqdn. Ldr. P. D. P. Holmes administered the oath Thursday night to 18 officers of No. 2455 A.C. and W. Unit, R.C.A.F. All wore black mourning ribbons on their left sleeves.

It is also expected black ties will be compulsory dress for service personnel wearing civilian clothes off duty.

"As long as the period of service mourning continues—officers will wear black arm bands, Army authorities said.

Social functions have been cancelled until further notice, and strict uniform regulations will be observed while on duty.

History Names Eight English Queens

There have been eight Queens of England, including the present Queen Elizabeth II, since the Norman conquest in 1066.

Historians agree on six. The two doubtful candidates for the throne, historically speaking, are Matilda and Lady Jane Grey.

Matilda was the daughter of Henry I, and by present-day standards the natural successor to the throne.

However, the Great Council of England, reluctant to acknowledge a female sovereign on Henry's death, chose Stephen. Matilda fought back, was actually crowned in London, but gradually alienated her friends and retired to Normandy in 1148.

Stephen is listed by most authorities as the reigning monarch of the period.

Lady Jane Grey, on the other hand, was not the natural successor when Edward VI died at 16. She was, however, proclaimed Queen and held the throne for nine days until the rightful heir Mary I (rightful again by present-day standards) gathered her forces and forced Jane to surrender the crown.

Matilda's case cannot be ignored because she was—or should have been—Queen by right of inheritance. Jane actually was proclaimed Queen, and therefore must be included in the dynasty.

The England of the two periods was divided, hence the confusion. In the time of Matilda, Saxons and Normans had not yet integrated to form one people, while in the case of Jane, Protestants and Roman Catholics were struggling bitterly for the monarchy. Jane was a protestant, while her victor, Mary I, was the Catholic choice.

Veteran Navy Officer Capt. J. Keohane Dies

Funeral services were held today in Ottawa for Capt. J. W. Keohane, O.B.E., C.D., R.C.N. (ret.), for many years chief engineer at H.M.C. Dockyard.

One of three sons, Lt.-Cmdr. T. Keohane, lives in Victoria.

He is also survived by his widow, two sons, Maurice and Brian, and one daughter, Sheila, all of Ottawa.

Knee-Hi Teaches Duncan Kiddies Safety Rules Of Work And Play

By RON BAIRD

DUNCAN—A shaggy little terrier won the hearts of 1,000 happy school children here Thursday.

Dr. Ballard's Knee-Hi paid them a visit.

They laughed with her, played with her, learnt her safety lessons and didn't want to let her go.

and North Cowichan's Reeve A. E. Beasley down to the littlest grade one moppet—had the time of their lives with Knee-Hi.

Duncan did Knee-Hi proud. Up bright and early, Kiwanis Club members waited on the outskirts of town to give her a real welcome.

When Ballard salesman Cliff Carter swung his car around the last turn before reaching the new bridge that spans the fast-running Koksilah River, Kiwanians waved a cheery "hello" and were ready with a firm handshake for the visitors.

Led by Eric Turner, energetic chairman of the club's growing junior safety patrol committee, and Lindsay Loutie, immediate past-president of Duncan Kiwanis, they met Knee-Hi's genial, white-haired master, South Carolinian Dr. George Brunson.

Close behind were Mrs. Brunson, Victoria school trustee Austin Curtis, chairman of the Victoria Kiwanis Club's junior safety patrol committee; Mrs. Curtis and son Hugh. Then the caravan of cars moved off, led by scarlet-coated R.C.M.P. Constable Maurice Low, the red lights on his highway patrol car winking.

Duncan knew its visitor. Kids pointed excitedly when they saw Knee-Hi's famous little car perched on top of the Dr. Ballard car; grown-ups looked up and waved; sturdy, call-booted loggers smiled as the car went by.

A short time later, 500 excited youngsters at the Duncan Elementary School shouted with delight as safety-wise Knee-Hi was introduced by school principal William Allister.

Kiwanis Club president, Vern Harford, told the youngsters: "You'll be glad you saw this show."

They were. So were Kiwanian safety patrol committee members E. M. Walde and Lindsay Hetherington and club secretary Tom Webb, standing nearby.

Then Knee-Hi sat down to lunch with the club. She watched patiently in a corner as members and guests did justice to a roast beef dinner at the new club headquarters in the Alderlea Tearoom.

Lending color to the luncheon in their dress uniforms were Mounty Constables Low and C. E. Ennels, second-in-command of the R.C.M.P. detachment here.

Then Knee-Hi went back to work for 500 more schoolchildren in the roomy, new Cowichan Junior-Senior High School.

Vice-principal A. E. Goddard, his students and others from the Sisters of St. Anne and York Road Schools saw the same program that thousands of Victoria children have seen in the past few weeks.

Duncan treated Knee-Hi like a little princess.

Knee-Hi Gets Big Welcome As Duncan Children, Adults See Program

Dr. Ballard's Knee-Hi took over Duncan lock, stock and barrel Thursday when she put on her show for more than 1,000 children. Picture at left shows some of the 500 students who saw the safety pup at the new Cowichan Junior-Senior High School auditorium. Perched on a chair, she told the youngsters to remember all the rules she had demonstrated earlier. Like children at the morning show in the Duncan Elementary School, they cheered and shouted with joy when Knee-Hi came out in her little car. Busy with the children in the morning and afternoon, the terrier took time out to show Duncan Kiwanis Club members that her program is aimed for adults as well. Grouped around her in the club's new quarters are (left to right) Eric Turner, chairman of the club's junior safety patrol committee; North Cowichan's Reeve A. E. Beasley; R.C.M.P. constable Maurice Low; Duncan's

Kiwanis Club president Vern Harford; Duncan's Mayor Wragg. Everyone in town knew who the little terrier was when she arrived. She even got special treatment in a restaurant when her master, Dr. George Brunson, and Kiwanians dropped in for coffee. Like the others, Knee-Hi sat in a booth in regal splendor while waitresses and other Duncanites paid her lots of a attention. (Times photo.)

Manslaughter Charge Sends Two For Trial

Fatal Traffic Mishaps Here

Two motorists involved in accidents in which two persons met death will face trial in higher courts.

This was the judgment of Magistrate H. C. Hall following preliminary hearings in city police court today and in Saanich court yesterday.

Sent up for trial were Leslie Marlow, Salt Spring Island, who appeared in Saanich court, and John E. Lauder, Victoria college student, in city police court.

Marlow was driving a car on Gorge Road Dec. 11 which was in a collision causing the death of Mrs. Jane Taylor, 70, of Ladysmith, police say.

Saanich police claim that Mrs. Taylor was a passenger in a car driven by her daughter, Mrs. Christine Harris, 45, also of Ladysmith, which was proceeding toward Victoria on the hill below Harriet Road when the collision occurred with the Marlow car.

JAN. 5 ACCIDENT

The charge against Lauder arose from a Jan. 5 early-morning accident at the intersection of Fisgard and Government.

Killed was Kee Jack Wo, 69-year-old Chinese resident of Victoria, who was crossing Government.

Police say that a taxi driven by Lauder struck the Chinese while he was crossing the street.

A doctor said that Kee died from a broken neck and other injuries.

Lauder was operating as a taxi driver during the school holiday period when the accident occurred.

In keeping with the official day of mourning, both scheduled tours of the Times and Victoria Press plant will be canceled Friday, February 15.

THEFT OF DRUGS HERE SAID ISOLATED CASE

Police today called theft of $1,000 worth of narcotics from Five Points Pharmacy this week an "isolated case."

Although fears have been expressed that recent mass arrests of dope peddlers in Vancouver may drive others to Victoria to find drugs, police are not too worried.

"There hasn't been a drug theft case here for more than six months," one official said. "Arrests in Vancouver may mean an increase in drug thefts here, but I very much doubt it." R.C.M.P. said they had "drawn a blank" in their investigation to date. The theft was done by professionals, they said.

ART CENTRE STAYS AT SPENCER HOUSE

Mayor Satisfied No Move Now Desired; Craigdarroch Studied As Culture Site

There will be no switch of Greater Victoria Art Centre to Craigdarroch Castle.

Mayor Claude Harrison, who suggested such a move at a recent meeting of City Council's executive committee, said today he was convinced people interested in the art centre preferred their present quarters in the former Sara Spencer home on Moss Street.

The mayor had felt that Craigdarroch, which houses offices of the Greater Victoria School Board, would be an ideal site for an art centre, but since the people concerned were so strongly in favor of the Spencer home, that would end the matter so far as he was concerned.

He spoke of the good work being done at the Art Centre, and said the building was a suitable one for the time being.

In so far as Craigdarroch is concerned, however, a special committee struck by Chamber of Commerce's tourist trade group, with the aim of seeing the structure become eventually an historic and cultural site, is still studying the matter.

HOUSE OVERLOOKED

Last July, S. Lane of the Chamber suggested that Craigdarroch was being overlooked as "a cultural, historic and tourist site." A special committee was struck to go into the matter.

The committee learned today however that Craigdarroch is owned by the Greater Victoria School Board and not the city of Victoria. According to Ald. Brent Murdoch, the castle was given to the board by the city.

"The chamber and I, as chairman of the City Council's tourist trade development committee, are convinced that Craigdarroch would be wonderful for an historic and cultural site," Ald. Murdoch said.

"I presume however we'd have to make a deal with the school board. There is no place less suited for school board offices." Lane, who heads the Chamber's special committee, said cooperation would be sought from the school board and studies made through the necessary channels.

Observances For Schools Suggested

The department of education is sending circulars to all schools in British Columbia making suggestions for memorial programs on the day before the funeral.

Here are the suggestions:

1. Group singing of some suitable hymn.
2. Reading of the 23rd Psalm.
3. Prayer by a local clergyman.
4. Brief tribute to His Majesty by prominent citizen or clergyman. This should emphasize the King's great personal qualities and service to his people.
5. All stand for short period in silent tribute.
6. Group singing of suitable hymn.
7. Benediction.
8. God Save the Queen.

Suggested time is 1:30 p.m. Classes should be dismissed after the ceremony.

The school flag should be flown at half-mast until sundown of the day of the King's funeral. (A flag is half-mast when the space above the flag equals the depth of the flag.)

SHOPPING GUIDE

Soon Be Like New Year's
By PENNY SAVER

Gracious! I haven't seen so many party trimmings since the New Year. In fact I never dreamt they went in for decorations for Valentine's Day, the way they are this year. You'll be amazed. My first thought was to go to town and take a look at the selection of cards they were offering this year. As usual they are colorful. Expensive if you want a really elaborate one, otherwise very reasonable.

Well, as I said, I really only went down to see the Valentine cards, but as I was passing along to another counter I happened to see little party hats for children in silver or gold and a Valentine crest on the front. An elastic will hold them on. Price is 5 cents.

You have no idea what this started. I went down this aisle and found one thing after another that would complete party plans on Feb. 14.

Not A Party Without Balloons

For one thing, a party is not complete without balloons. Big red ones are a nickel each and others are a quarter for a package of 10.

And what about party crackers? You can't get along without those either. Really attractive ones suitable for this particular celebration or any other party during the year, are selling at six for 49 cents and others at 79 cents for the same number.

Horns and whistles, which always add to the merriment, are being offered at a nickel apiece. The noise may drive you crazy, but after all, it's all in fun.

The younger set especially, appreciate place cards. They seem to like knowing that a special place was saved for them. The cutest little place cards all decked out for Valentine's Day, are selling at 5 cents each also. It seems that everything in the way of decorations is the same price—5 cents.

Sometime before the day of the party you will want to remember some of your friends with cards.

As I mentioned before there is a wide variety to choose from. Also saw some make-your-own Valentine cards for the children. They always have a wonderful time cutting these cards out and they are just as cute as the ready-made ones. Book of these is 19 pennies.

Then again if you are thinking of giving a gift you will want to use the traditional red or white paper.

Red or white wrapping tissue is 10 pennies a roll and the same colored ribbon is priced at 10 and 25 cents a roll.

It's going to be a gay Valentine's Day.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Thin Lower Lip Improved
By Extending The Lipstick

Q—"My upper lip is fairly well shaped but my lower lip is very thin, far too small. This gives my mouth an overhanging appearance. What can I do to remedy it?"

A—"Draw the line of your lipstick out a bit past the normal line on the lower lip. Be sure that the line extends all the way to the ends or corners of your lips. Just a little more fullness can make a big difference, and with today's long-lasting lip shades you can forget the line, once you draw it, and fill in later on whenever you do your whole mouth over.

Q—"At what age do you think young girls should begin wearing formal?"

A—"Today this begins much earlier than in the past. It depends partly on what your group does. It is not a matter of such vital importance that you need be too different from the rest of your crowd. I think it is too bad to hurry things too much. You will be grown up soon enough and certainly really delectable is not good taste until at least 16 or 17.

TODAY'S RECIPE

SALMON LOAF

One cup ripe olives, 1 (1-lb.) can salmon, ½ cup cracker crumbs, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, few drops Tabasco sauce, 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine. White or Hollandaise sauce.

Slice olives from pits into large pieces. Drain and flake salmon. Combine with cracker crumbs, salt, pepper, celery salt and Tabasco sauce, mixing well. Stir in onion, ripe olives, beaten eggs and butter. Pack lightly into top of well-buttered double boiler. Cover and cook over boiling water about 1 hour. Unmold onto platter and serve with white or Hollandaise sauce. Serves 4 to 6.

Men can also look forward to new styles this spring. Tip Top Tailors introduce the host coat, modelled by Pat Fanson, Vancouver. He is at ease in the loose-fitting jacket tailored in a very fine black and white check complemented with shimmering black lapels. Louise Olson, seated, and Betty Morphet were among models from Vancouver for the spring style show.

Spring Styles Featured
In Smart Tailored Lines

Sheer elegance in tailored ensembles delighted Victorians at a spring-style show in the Club Sirocco last evening, featuring models created by Tip Top Tailors.

Mrs. Gail Mitchell, Vancouver, was commentator and professional models from the mainland city acted as mannequins.

To capture the admiring eye was a chateau velvet coat classically belted at the waist and styled with a droop shoulder line, shawl collar and eye-catching large pockets with jaunty pointed cuffs.

Tip Top designers stressed simply-cut suits often relieved by soft belting and slanting or novel pockets. The skirts were slim and a little shorter than even the fashion-conscious women are wearing.

Men, too, had an important part in the showing of spring fashions. Male models casually showed the latest cut in suits and brought attention to tailored casual and dinner clothes.

Something new for the well-dressed man was a collarless

white dinner jacket which offered a casual air to dinner-time dignity.

Soft tones were used to create most of the suits, which were contrasted with accessories in brilliant tones of blooming spring. Artificial flowers often graced a lapel or perched at the shoulder-line on feminine suits.

A novelty "A-hunting We Will Go" was an extremely smart outfit for riding. Blue ripcord jodhpurs were matched with an English Harris tweed jacket over a wine Venetian gabardine "weekie" touched with leather buttons.

A bridal scene is always appropriate at the close of a style show, but last evening Tip Top Tailors, in their bridal scene, highlighted what the well-dressed groom should wear.

He appeared in dashing morning coat and striped trousers and vest, complete with white carnation in the lapel.

Burnside — Dr. Clifford Carl of Provincial museum, will give a talk and show a film at meeting of Burnside P.T.A., Monday at 8, in school auditorium.

Hear Story Of
Grenfell

Sir Wilfred Grenfell, a great Christian, was the subject of the interesting address given by Mrs. Richard Spicer last evening to Women's Missionary Society of members of evening auxiliaries of the Presbyterian of the United Church at the annual meeting in the church hall.

Love of his fellowmen has been left for all to see and his faith in God helped him to achieve so much, Mrs. Spicer said. Sir Wilfred had faith, hope and love, and probably realized that love was the greatest force of all, she added.

Mrs. Spicer sketched the great man's early life and how he came to found his mission work. Son of an English clergyman he had a protected and normal childhood. At the time when he was to choose a career he decided to become a doctor, only because someone suggested it. His ambition was to become a wealthy, fashionable Harley Street specialist.

Attending London hospital in the slums he became disturbed about the poverty and squalor, but did not give up the Harley Street aim until later.

While still attending medical school he started a mission to teach the Christian faith to Jewish children. After that he went to the underground of London where the dregs of humanity lived in caves.

Then he volunteered to work among the fishermen on the North Atlantic coast, where during the season 25,000 to 30,000 fishermen were without medical or spiritual help.

He realized the great need of hospitalization and other facilities and the first year he returned with another young doctor and a nurse. As each new need arose Sir Wilfred met it.

St. Anthony, where he established his mission, had 11 broken-down, dirty shacks at the time. Today there are 3,000 good, modern houses, United and Anglican churches, a hospital for 120 beds, industrial centre, a children's home and a large exchange clothing store.

"He Was a Good Man"

—by Maurice Humber.

When the shepherd's song, echoed in a Syrian hill, And the Star over Bethlehem stood to fulfill, Joy to the world the shepherds did sing, "Let the World Rejoice, receive her King."

This birth of Jesus we forever behold, As the sweetest story ever told, Little children accept it, less earthly-shod, Perhaps it's because, they are close to God.

As we grow older, we sometimes fear, God isn't with us, or even near. We start to question, get negative, then, Sin, sickness and death, involved in these plots.

Then we look out, put these plots in reverse, All round us the Law of the great Universe. There is the snowdrop, defying the cold, Warmth in the winter, so we never grow old.

Never in doubt, or questioning the plan, Love's promise on earth, unfolding to man, It's just because on Self we dwell, Which is ALL the difference 'tween Heaven & hell;

But when we let go, we cease to sin, "Of myself I can do nothing; 'tis the Father within." These are the thoughts for one gone away.

He knew all the things that Jesus did say, A man who felt with every breath, "If you keep My sayings, you'll never see death."

And these commands our KING did keep, And so FOUND life in gentle sleep, Crowning a destiny, a glorious span, Says the whole world, "He Was a Good Man."

In her presidential address, Mrs. Perry spoke of the school at Ahousat, completed last fall. Also, a small apartment was built at the rear of the structure to accommodate a missionary teacher and to provide a dispensary for the nurse.

"Work among the Chinese in Canada has greatly increased," said Mrs. Perry. "Good work is being done by up-Island missionary, Miss Ruth Peat, and also in the Chinese Christian Community Centre in Victoria by Mrs. A. I. McLean."

The president said there is still a great need in the foreign work, particularly in Africa, Central India and Japan, for more teachers, doctors and nurses.

Mrs. A. I. McLean led the worship period, and Mrs. J. Gillespie sang a solo.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Dean G. R. Calvert, who spoke on "Christian Citizenship." He said that although this is truly a time of "good grief," all will show their citizenship and loyalty by looking forward to the coronation and remembering what a "wonderful life we can have here in this wonderful world of ours."

A Hawaiian Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wells, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. D. M. Elsdon, left for Vancouver yesterday from where they will fly to Hawaii this week-end for a visit of several weeks. They will stay at the Moana Hotel in Honolulu. Mrs. Elsdon came from her home in Wilkie, Sask., on Wednesday to accompany her parents on the trip.

While they are away, Mr. W. Wells will occupy the Beach Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. Wells.

Dr. and Mrs. Fred Nichols of Edmonton are visitors in the city and are staying at the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. F. Manning, Ripon Road, left Wednesday for Honolulu, where she will spend a three-week vacation.

Miss E. B. Elworthy was hostess during the tea hour recently in her Bank Street home. Guests numbered 30.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding of Miss Joan Lavina Webb and Mr. Edwin Arthur Popham, last evening, were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pinchin, White Rock, and Mrs. E. L. Pottinger, Vancouver.

Dr. L. B. Jaques will be a visitor in Victoria from Saskatoon this week-end, the guest of Rev. F. E. M. Tomlin, at his home, 1737 Fairfield Road. Dr. Jaques is head of the Department of Physiology at the University of Saskatchewan.

Among the social affairs attendant on the departure of Viscount and Viscountess Alexander of Tunis for England was the late afternoon reception at Rideau Hall, Ottawa, for members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery and their wives.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Verley returned earlier this week to their Dufferin Road home, following a three-week vacation in Honolulu. They flew both ways on the Pan-American Line.

Miss Mia Schjelderup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Schjelderup of Courtenay, left recently for Ottawa, en route to St. John, N.B., from where she will sail for Britain. She will be married in March to Mr. Robert N. Robson of Edinburgh where the couple plan to live. The bride-elect, who is a graduate of McGill University in physiotherapy, has spent the past three years in her profession in and near London, Eng. She has many friends in this city.

Last week-end was a gay one at Forbidden Plateau Lodge, where there was good riding during the daylight hours of Saturday and Sunday, and dancing into the "wee sma' hours" the same evenings. Among guests were Mr. and Mrs. D. Snider, B. McKinnon, A. Stephenson and M. Williams, all of Courtenay, and Misses E. Fowler, M. Sherbino, G. Skinner, M. Stroh, E. Wight, H. L. Pearson, E. Nordahl, E. J. Webb and R. Watson, of Port Alberni.

Educational Work Group's Main Project During Year

Reports at the annual meeting of Sir James and Lady Douglas Chapter, I.O.D.E., held yesterday afternoon at headquarters, Government Street, showed that the chapter had done a great deal of educational work during the past year.

Mrs. O. P. Farthing, educational secretary, reported the chapter had adopted the Nelson Island School at Billings Bay, B.C., and books for a library had been sent there; also $30 was voted to secondary education and a prize donated to best student at Sir James Douglas School.

Mrs. F. H. Parsons, who was re-elected regent, thanked members for their co-operation, in her report.

Other officers are Mrs. Fitzherbert Bullen, honorary regent; Mrs. Squire Mitchell, honorary vice-regent; Mrs. R. L. Brain, first vice-regent; Mrs. S. M. Leigh, second; Mrs. A. Drysdale, secretary; Mrs. G. A. Vantreight, treasurer; Mrs. O. P. Farthing, educational secretary; Mrs. H. Goodfellow, Echoes, and Mrs. F. Middleton, standard bearer.

Brentwood Women's Institute Plan Party To Aid Solarium

A film depicting the true story of a small Duncan child who was a patient in the Solarium will be shown at the children's Valentine costume party to be sponsored by Brentwood Women's Institute next Saturday at 7 in Institute Hall. Also on the program are child artists, magician, Frank Merrifield and a novelty number.

Costumes will be judged in four age groups: under 6 years; 6 to 8; 9 to 12 and 12 to 16 and refreshments will be free to all children in costume.

Mrs. G. D. Moody was hostess at a recent meeting of the institute when Mrs. C. E. Douglas, home economics convenor, gave a talk on winter desserts, especially pies. Many recipes were given and a discussion of the culinary art followed.

Mrs. Roger Ronson, who recently returned from a four-month vacation in Great Britain, was welcomed and entertained by the group with a graphic description of her travels and of institute work in Britain.

Next meeting will be in the hall, Tuesday at 2.30.

Muted Colors To Be Used In London

LONDON, Feb. 7 (Reuters)—The blacks, navy blue and greys which dominate the spring and summer fashion collections of London's leading dressmakers will strike the keynote of every official functions in Britain in the months of mourning ahead.

Designed, made and shown to the press for the first time last week, the colors used might have been selected with a sense of foreboding of what the future held.

Today, the couturiers frantically checked their stocks of black and grey materials, ready for the mourning and half-mourning orders which will now replace those expected for the big events of the season.

Auxiliary Helps Repair Church Kitchen

A sum of $300 was voted to managers of the church for kitchen repair work, at a meeting of Fairfield United Women's Auxiliary.

Nuptial Service In St. George's For Joan Webb And Edwin Popham

Standard baskets of plum blossoms, snapdragons and dark tulips created a spring floral background for the nuptial service last evening in St. George's Church, Cadboro Bay, which united in marriage Joan Lavina Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Robert Webb, Oxford Street, and Edwin Arthur Popham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Edward Popham, Vining Street, Rev. William Hills officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of heirloom champagne-toned Limerick lace with a flounced skirt falling in train over a crinoline. The lace bodice featured a scalloped neckline and the moulded waistline of ivory satin came to a point at the back. A short tulle veil misted over the bride's shoulders from a head-dress of stiffened lace edged with pearls. She complemented her bridal ensemble with a spray of dark red tulips framed in glossy leaves.

Miss Barbara Anne Crombie, cousin of the bride, maid of honor, wore a gown of deep red velvet.

with-draped Bertha collar and flared skirt. Her scuttle-brimmed bonnet of matching velvet tied beneath the chin with champagne tulle and she carried a matching velvet muff with gardenias and white freesia pinned to it.

Darrell Popham, brother of the groom, was best man and Alan Macfarlane, Richard Ellis and Alan Beesley were ushers.

The newlyweds received guests in front of a mirror wreathed with plum blossoms and lighted candles at a reception in the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crombie, Uplands Road. Robert Crombie proposed the toast.

Upon leaving for her honeymoon at Timberline Lodge, Mt.

ELIZABETH MOURNS AT SIDE OF FATHER'S BIER

Monarch Lies In Grey Church He Loved

The body of King George VI was placed before the altar in a chapel of Sandringham Church today, to lie in state before being taken to London for state ceremonies. Jimmie Emerson, 73-year-old royal carpenter, had the sad task of making a coffin for the King, whom he had known as a boy. It is the second royal coffin Emerson has made. He built the other one for King George V. The coffin is of seasoned oak from a royal tree felled by George VI himself.

King's Personal Servants Grieve Past 'The Squire'

By HAROLD GUARD
SANDRINGHAM, Eng., Feb. 8 (UP)—The personal servants of King George VI filed into the master bedroom of the Royal house here today and paid their last respects to their master and monarch.

Gardeners, footmen, butlers, maids, cooks, bowlegged grooms, grained farm hands and gamekeepers shuffled into the ground-floor bedroom to view the body of the King.

Some cleared their throats, some wept openly.

They were the first persons outside the Royal Family to see the King as he lay in death. Queen Mother Elizabeth wanted it that way. She thought it fitting that people who loved him most and had spent a lifetime working for him should be the first to pay their final respects.

Standing a bit back and to one side in the room was Jimmie Emerson, 73, royal carpenter, who had finished his last work for the King. It was a coffin, made from a seasoned oak which the King himself had felled.

The coffin was a simple affair of plain polished wood with a metal plate bearing the monarch's name. Emerson made one like it 16 years ago for the King's father, George V.

Near the bed stood James MacDonald, the King's valet. He found the monarch's body when he brought him his morning tea two days ago.

After her official duties were finished in London today, the King's elder daughter, Queen Elizabeth II, came here to pay her respects.

The King's body will be taken out of the Royal house today and across the lawn to a chapel of the little chapel of St. Mary Magdalene, the parish church, 250 feet away. It will lie in state there before the ornate silver altar until Monday.

The move will be private. Police have erected screens around the fence and great Norwich Gate of the estate to shield the body and the Royal Family from prying eyes.

The King's gamekeepers, with whom he spent his last day shooting in the sunshine, will place the monarch's body on a wheeled bier—the same one on which his father was borne on and rolled it before the altar.

The gamekeepers will stand guard over the coffin as tenant farmers and townspeople file into the church to whisper a prayer over the Squire—as they called him.

Black skies frowned upon the estate and it was very cold. Rain threatened the short trip of the body between the "home" the King loved and the chapel in which a week ago he sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

Before the altar the coffin will sit on a pedestal draped with a Union Jack. Candles will stand at the four corners.

If tradition is followed, the Monarch, known to his people as the "Sailor King" will wear the uniform of an admiral of the fleet. Across his chest from his right shoulder to his left side will lay the blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter, Britain's highest order.

At the foot of the coffin will lie the cocked hat of an admiral and his gold-hilted sword in a black scabbard. Its sharkskin grip will be polished.

On Monday, the body will be hoisted on a gun carriage and, flanked by Grenadier Guards, will be taken down the "Rhodes denderon Walk" to Wolferton Station en route to London and the formal funeral.

The children of the parish choir which the King loved so well have been learning anthems to sing as the King departs. Other children will line the route to the station. They have contributed flowers which will be heaped around the monarch's coffin.

B.C. Gets Extra $8,500,000

Premier Johnson Discloses New Tax
Rental Agreement; Cabinet Approves

A new clause in the Dominion-Provincial tax rental agreement, negotiated by Premier Byron Johnson in Ottawa, means that B.C. will get approximately $50,000,000 in the fiscal year 1952-53 instead of $41,500,000 as previously indicated.

The new plan was disclosed by the premier in a telephone call from Ottawa today and will be recommended to the Legislature when it meets later this month. It was approved by the cabinet after telephone discussions with the premier Thursday.

The province gets the benefit of the extra amount by elimination of a "holdback" provision under which quarterly instalments on the rental payments will start June 30 instead of Sept. 30.

This means that in the fiscal year 1952-53 B.C. will get the full $50,000,000 negotiated earlier by the government plus the extra quarterly payment from the 1947-52 agreement which expires March 31.

In the previous agreement there was always a lag of three months in the payments. B.C. will get the full fee for the coming year, but then will revert to the $41,500,000 figure for the balance of the five-year agreement, subject to the normal changes coming about through movements in population or the gross national product.

The premier confirmed that fluctuations in the rental fee will be calculated on a year to year basis, according to economic activity, instead of being on three year average.

He also disclosed the new agreement will provide for B.C. to re-enter the income and corporation tax field at the end of the agreement if it so desires.

West German Troops Serve

By EDWARD CURTIS
BONN, Germany, Feb. 8 (AP)—West Germany's parliament agreed, 204 to 156, tonight to raise soldiers for western defense, but added a long list of conditions.

The conditions included ending of Allied occupation, an equal vote for West Germany in strategic councils of the western world and release of German war criminals from Allied prisons. Six deputies abstained.

Victoria Mourns Friday

Silent Period
May Be Named

Next Friday will be a day of mourning in Victoria.

Although no announcement has been made yet at City Hall, it is expected that a two-minute period of silence will be proclaimed, to be observed by all citizens.

In accordance with the desire expressed by the Queen from London today, it is unlikely that there will be any general suspension of work or closing of schools.

A statement from the home secretary said:

"Her Majesty's ministers have advised that in accordance with precedent there should be no general suspension of work on Friday, Feb. 15, the day of the late King's funeral.

"Her Majesty knows well that her father will be constantly in the thoughts of her people throughout the day.

"It is her wish that as a mark of respect for his memory a two-minute silence should be observed during the period of the funeral service at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, at a time which will be announced later."

UP TO LOCALITIES

Only the courts, banks and federal government offices will be required to close, the day of the King's funeral, under a federal proclamation issued Wednesday.

The proclamation appoints the funeral day, "as a public holiday to be observed as a day of general mourning by all persons throughout Canada." Under the law, it is binding only on banks and federal institutions.

Officials said it will be up to the provinces and the municipalities to issue their own proclamations requiring the closing of their offices and stores and other business establishments. Some cities already have proclaimed the day one of civic mourning.

The federal government plans no special appeal to Canadians to observe the day as one of general mourning. It feels that the proclamation itself constitutes an appeal.

A cabinet spokesman said B.C. does not have to proclaim a holiday because, under the Interpretation Act, Ottawa's proclamation makes it binding on B.C.

Joins Mother, Sister At Sandringham House

SANDRINGHAM, England, Feb. 8 (CP)—Queen Elizabeth arrived at her country house here today to mourn at the coffin of her father, the late King.

She and the Duke of Edinburgh sped in a big black limousine which had brought them from London.

The car turned into a side gate of Sandringham House grounds to avoid a crowd at the main gate.

At Sandringham she joins her mother and sister, Princess Margaret, who have kept a lone vigil by the coffin since the King's death.

Elizabeth, clad in black, sat erect and calm as the car crunched up the driveway past a battery of news cameramen.

She will likely remain here until the coffin is moved to London for the start of the official lying-in-state Monday.

A crowd of about 200 had been waiting in bitterly cold wind outside the main gate for about two hours. Shortly before her arrival a thunder and hail storm swept over the countryside.

The crowd caught only a glimpse of the Royal car as it swept into the side entrance.

Inside the estate the body of her father lay in a plain oak coffin in a dimly-lighted down stairs bedroom where he died quietly early Wednesday. He was dressed in his well-loved uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet.

Later today after the young Queen pays her respects, the body was carried 200 yards to the little 16th Century Chapel of St. Mary Magdalene.

The Duke drove the car part of the way to Sandringham. About eight miles from the estate he was seen sitting at the wheel of the car, hatless and wearing dark glasses. The Queen sat beside him in front wearing a scarf.

A mile or so outside Sandringham, the Duke halted the accompanying police car and then he and the Queen moved into the back seat while the chauffeur took over the wheel.

As she arrived at Sandringham, Elizabeth flung her arms around her mother, her sister Margaret and her two children, Charles and Anne, and kissed them all before entering the room where her father lay.

Only a few lights burned in the red-brick mansion. The setting sun gave it a bleak, chilled look. A strong north wind cut into the small crowd which stood outside.

Inside Queen Mother Elizabeth called for tea and the family assembled for a talk. On the kitchen side of the house a full staff went to work readying the dinner for the new Queen.

Late today the coffin was taken to the chapel on the estate, where the men who served as the King's gamekeepers will keep watch until Monday, when the body will be removed to London.

Payment Of Club Dues Condemned By Mayor

City's payment of Union Club dues for the city manager when the authorization was never recorded by the committee concerned was "strongly condemned" by Mayor C. L. Harrison at city council meeting today.

He said he would see that it did not happen again.

Ald. Robert Macmillan, rising on question of privilege, asked if the manager's dues were paid, and the mayor replied they were.

Throughout the discussion it was stated by Alderman Macmillan and the mayor that manager Cecil Wyatt was in no way involved.

"He is not involved at all," said Harrison.

Ald. Frank Mulliner said the original idea was to have the mayor a member of the club. Members of the finance committee, of which the former mayor was a member, felt it would be better to have a permanent official in the club and the manager was selected.

Mayor Harrison said he had asked the secretary of committees, Warren Waller, if the item was recorded. Reading from the latter's written reply, Harrison said the secretary was advised by the finance committee of the day that it did not need to go into the minutes.

"It is deeply regretful that funds of the corporation should be paid out without coming to council," said the Mayor. "It is the most amazing thing I've heard of."

The City Council approved a motion by McMillan that club dues be allotted for club dues or membership whatsoever.

Britain's Second 'Good Queen Bess' Hailed By Thousands

By EDWARD CURTIS
LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Battered trumpets sounded and field pieces boomed today as Britain drew forth centuries-old pageantry to proclaim the second "Good Queen Bess" in history.

Thousands gathered to hear the solemn reading of the proclamation from a high balcony of St. James' Palace.

They were a sombre throng, dressed in the dull colors of mourning for their King.

At precisely 11 a.m. (3 a.m. P.S.T.) a tiny bell tinkled behind the high walls of the palace yard.

Officers of the Coldstream Guards, wearing black arm-bands, barked sharp orders.

The Guardsmen snapped to attention, standing stiffly in their long grey coats and tall, black bearskin hats.

From the balcony, heralds with the Royal coat of arms blazoned on banners fluttering from their trumpets, blew three flourishes.

The garter king-of-arms, Sir George Bell, stepped forward, wearing a richly-embroidered tunic, a short, loose-sleeved jacket of 15th century style.

His voice—deadened by traffic sounds—came over a specially installed public address system almost inaudibly. Only an occasional word reached the multitude looking up at him.

But at the end one phrase came through clear and distinct: "God Save the Queen."

When Bell had nearly finished, a burst of sunlight dazzled the crowd in the square and the shivering dignitaries standing on the roofs of nearby buildings.

The trumpets sounded another flourish after he completed the proclamation.

The band of the Coldstream Guards, their drums draped and unused, played the anthem, "God Save the Queen."

As its last notes sounded, the saluting guns began to boom.

Those on Tower Hill, three miles down the Thames from Buckingham Palace, fired a salute of 62 guns.

In Hyde Park, a short distance away from St. James', another battery boomed out a salute of 41 guns.

The new Queen, who still lives in Clarence House just behind St. James' Palace, did not witness the proclamation.

Most of the members of the cabinet attended.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill stood alone at an open window on the north side of the court. He was bare-headed and wore a black overcoat.

The ceremony at St. James' Palace took only three minutes.

A procession of five carriages then wheeled out from the palace, at the trot. The gold, silver and scarlet of the uniforms of household cavalry led the way, clattering down the broad Mall and through Admiralty Arch into Trafalgar Square.

In the crush of the crowd several persons fainted.

In Trafalgar Square other thousands packed themselves around the base of Nelson's column.

In front of the statue of Charles I. on the Charing Cross side of the square, the band of the Grenadier Guards was drawn up, their drums draped in crepe.

The state procession drew up beneath the statue. The Lancaster Herald, A. G. B. Russell, in colorful robes and cocked hat, rose in his carriage.

He unrolled his manuscript and again read the proclamation.

In a loud voice he ended with "God Save the Queen." He raised his hat and again the trumpeters blasted a fanfare. Solemnly the Guards' band played the anthem.

The procession moved off down the Strand toward the Old City of London.

A pale sun shone on the neo-gothic law court building as scarlet-robed city sheriffs lined up in the middle of the street at Temple Bar for the ceremonial challenging of the Queen's men at the boundary to the Old City of London.

Royal trumpeters sounded a fanfare. A scarlet barrier was stretched across the street as the procession neared.

"Who goes there?" rang out the challenge from the Lord Mayor's men.

In scarlet, blue and gold, portcullis pursuivant, a page, replied: "Her Majesty's men at arms who demand entrance to the City to proclaim Her Royal Majesty Queen Elizabeth."

Messengers carried the proclamation to the Lord Mayor. He ordered admission granted to the procession so that "this order of council may be read out."

Slowly and solemnly, the scarlet-clad sheriffs, preceded by the golden-city mace and the splendidly-encrusted sword, gave way.

They formed up at the end of Chancery Lane. The escort of Household Cavalry clattered down Fleet Street with breastplates shining and plumes flying.

Once more the solemn proclamation rang out. It was read by the Ulster king of arms, Sir Gerald W. Wollaston.

The booming guns and the ceremony failed to disturb the ravens of the tower.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

The more you listen to the experts, the more you wonder if parents are in any way qualified to raise children. It's complicated, and parents are too emotional and ill-informed. Child study is a life-long job—something for the specialists.

It's a little unfortunate, but science hasn't yet eliminated the parent from the actual production of the infant. But give science a little more time.

Once the youngster has arrived, though, it should be taken out of the parents' hands. Pappy and Mammy should be given a glimpse of the small bundle, should be allowed to go and gaw at it a few minutes, and then the child should be removed for processing.

Twenty-one to 25 years later, capped and gowned and with a university degree, it should be returned to parents, but not necessarily the same ones to which it was born. They might not be compatible.

Just because people have been fumbling along for a few thousand years bringing up children haphazardly, that doesn't mean a change isn't in order. Why go stumbling into the future the way humanity has staggered through the past?

You recognize a parent's limitations whenever you compare the correct procedures of child-raising with the actualities of the average home. Little things point it up. You learn, for instance, how wide the field of discipline is. You're not going to do the good thing; don't spank him for the bad! Never strike a child. That's only an admission of your own defeat, your own inability to handle a situation.

It Gets Confusing

How does it work out? Well, the youngsters are going to a swimming meet. You can win a prize (price 16 cents) if they do well, a Victoria Penny (price 40 cents) if they win a race. That's rewarding them for achievement.

But shucks, it isn't the right thing to do. You're making the little rascals strive for gain. You're corrupting them with the professional spirit. You're destroying that fine, uplifting joy of merely participating without concentrating on victory.

You see, your whole attitude is wrong. You're trying to make competitors of them. Once they get the idea that winning pays off, they'll be out to beat the other kids. And since all kids can't win, look at the disappointments you're piling up for them. Look at the inferiority complexes you're creating. Haven't you heard of psychology?

Anyhow, what makes you think they want to swim in the first place? Maybe that's just your idea and you're imposing it on them. Maybe they'd be much happier being the Ferdinand type, sitting under a tree and smelling the flowers. They have to lead their own lives, not yours. What business have you pushing them into something along lines you favor?

Protection At School

It can be the same at school. Only the experts are checking you there. You want the youngsters to rank high in the class. But what business is it of yours if they do or don't? The specialist has decided the competency of your boy or girl. What's the use of pressuring the kid? Anyhow, you're not going to find out. That's one of the beauties of the report card system. It'll give you a general idea of where they stand, but it isn't going to allow you to make too fine distinctions, to draw too many invidious comparisons. It may leave you a bit frustrated, but it will give the youngsters some protection against that development.

The more you think of it, the more dangerous it seems to let a kid be subjected to his home environment. When a juvenile goes wrong, you can almost always trace his trouble to the family, or some member of it. You'll find there's too much affection there, or too little affection. The kid's given too much pocket money or not enough. He suffers from over-indulgence or neglect. His folks just don't know the why's or wherefore's of behaviorism, or if they do, they're out lecturing on the subject and haven't time to apply it.

At all events, raising children is a full-time job. A father, if he does it adequately, shouldn't have to turn out to make a living at the same time. And how is a mother going to get her chores done if she's spending enough hours on doing the right thing by the offspring?

Processing the child would fix that all up. It's work for the specialists.

Funny, though, isn't it, how many youngsters seem to grow up into decent citizens in spite of parents who just don't understand these things?

Son Of Duncan's Founding Father Honored At Death

Special to The Times

DUNCAN — Provincial and municipal officials paid tribute to the late Kenneth Forrest Duncan at impressive funeral services held Thursday at St. John's Anglican Church.

From Victoria were Education Minister W. T. Straith and R. A. Pennington, deputy provincial secretary. Mayor J. C. Wragg and Duncan city council also attended, and Reeve A. E. Beasley represented North Cowichan Municipality.

Mr. Duncan, son of W. C. Duncan, for whom the city was named, was also its first mayor and represented the district in the Legislature from 1919 to 1924.

Red Proposal Talk Subject

U.N. And Communists Agree To Start Meet On Foe's Suggested Plans To Bring Peace

United Press Staff Correspondent

PANMUNJOM, Korea, Feb. 8 (UP)—The United Nations and the Communists agreed today to begin talks today on a Red proposal for a high-level conference to seek peace in the Far East.

The full truce delegations will assemble at 8 p.m. today to take up the Communist proposal under the fifth and final item on the Korean armistice agenda.

The Red plan, submitted two days ago, calls for a U.N.-Communist political conference with in 90 days of a Korean armistice to discuss the withdrawal of all foreign troops in Korea and a general Far Eastern peace settlement.

The Communists indicated they wish to bring up at the post-armistice conference the future of Formosa, Indo-China, Malaya and Burma as well as of Korea.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, head of the U.N. armistice delegation, sent a message to the Reds accepting the proposal as a basis of discussion. He suggested the talks start Saturday and the Reds promptly agreed.

TO OPPOSE SUGGESTION

Joy is expected to oppose the Communist suggestion that the conference be confined to five North Korean and Chinese Communist government representatives and five U.N. delegates on grounds this would exclude South Korea, which is not a member of the U.N.

He also may insist that the conference be confined to the future of Korea.

The decision to open talks on the Communist proposal was the only agreement to emerge from the latest series of armistice meetings at Panmunjom.

Staff officers trying to agree on supervision of a truce made no tangible progress. The U.N. spent most of the time persuading the Communists that there is no connection between Allied proposals on troop rotation and on neutral inspection of ports of entry.

"I think they understand our views a little better now," U.N. spokesman, Col. Dan O. Darrow, said.

But the Allies failed to persuade the Reds to raise their offer to permit the replacement of 25,000 troops a month during a truce or to increase beyond three the ports through which the replacements would enter South Korea.

U.N. staff officers in another meeting accused the Communists of planning to dole out Allied war prisoners in small groups until the Allies have completed the delivery of 132,000 Communist prisoners.

"They don't want to give all of their backs until we give them all of ours," said Col. George W. Hickman of the U.N.

The U.N. had proposed that the Reds, because they claim to hold only 11,599 Allied prisoners, complete delivery within 30 days while the U.N. would take 60 days to hand over its 132,000 prisoners.

Chinese Co. Tsai Cheng Wan said the Reds could not agree to different time limits.

No Established Procedure Recognized For Crowning Date Of Queen Elizabeth

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth probably will be crowned some time between next August and the spring of 1953. But court officials do not start thinking about the coronation until well after the late King's funeral.

Nor does British history help. There is no set interval, some British kings have waited several years, others only a few months, before going down to Westminster Abbey to have the crown placed on their heads.

There is only one fixed rule—it cannot take place until court mourning for the dead monarch is over.

There is a second principle—colorful uniforms and keeps the crowds away.

Nine months' court mourning not laid down in any rules of etiquette, but usually observed by practical courtiers—that the coronation should not take place in winter. It often is raining in Britain then, and bad weather spoils was decreed by King Edward VIII when King George V died 16 years ago.

If Queen Elizabeth chooses the same period in memory of her father, no coronation ceremony could be held before the winter chill descends on London.

So, citizens are guessing, the coronation ceremony and the long parade which accompanies it most likely would be put off until the spring. But if the mourning is only six months it still would be possible to stage the lavish display by August.

Secreds Ready Resources For Election War

E. O. Duke was elected Thursday night as president of the newly-formed constituency organization of the Social Credit League of Victoria.

The constituency body will function to co-ordinate activities of two Social Credit groups now functioning here.

W. L. Fahy was named first vice-president of the organization; R. B. Shaw, second vice-president; and J. W. Moraes, third vice-president. A secretary will be named later.

The meeting decided to sponsor a Social Credit meeting in Saanich on Feb. 13.

Threshold Of A New Age

AT THIS TIME OF DEEP SORROW, the Commonwealth and other parts of the world look upon Queen Elizabeth II with compassion and sincere sympathy for a daughter who has lost a revered father. In the days immediately ahead she will be required to perform traditional duties, meeting the demands of state and accepting her responsibilities as befits a sovereign.

On her slender shoulders fall the burden of human distress and the weight of monarchy. Such has been the future ordained for her since her father assumed the crown, inevitably it was her role to step forward, in time of personal grief, and accept those tasks which the King discharged so nobly and so courageously. It is, in part, the courage she has inherited from him which will sustain her in their performance.

The young woman who won Canada's deep affection so recently on her triumphal tour, and who has become Canada's Queen with tragic suddenness, begins her reign with the full-hearted devotion of her peoples. As the poignancy of her loss diminishes, the inspiration of her presence as Queen will become more apparent in the Commonwealth and the world.

She ascends the throne at a time when the institution of British monarchy has lent some steadiness to an unstable world. Yet it is a time, too, in which Britain has yielded, through wounds of war, her prime leadership in world affairs. She is Queen of a people in Britain who know only too keenly the rigors of austerity. She and her family have been deeply aware of the serious conditions confronting those people.

There can be little doubt in her mind of the anxieties which beset them in these troubled days when peace is elusive. Nor can she be unaware of the grim, hard road ahead of Britain struggling back to a more reasonable living.

B.C. In Parliament

BRITISH COLUMBIA HOLDS 18 seats in the House of Commons. On the basis of its present population it is entitled to 22. It should hold those seats in the next Parliament, to be elected probably about 18 months hence.

Presumably the federal government intends to introduce a redistribution bill at the forthcoming parliamentary session. It would be based on the last census, which shows a great shift in Canada's population and, among other things, a growth in British Columbia about twice the national average.

Since provinces are represented in Parliament according to population, British Columbia will gain 4 seats, more than any other province. Alberta, apparently, will gain 1. Saskatchewan will lose 5 and Manitoba will lose 1. British Columbia thus would become in political strength, as already it is in economic, the third province of the nation.

This apparently does not suit some of the prairie politicians. They would like Saskatchewan to retain through the next election its present standing in Parliament, despite its relative drop in population. Therefore it would suit these influences to postpone the redistribution bill for a year or two and let Canadians vote once more by the existing arrangements, in defiance of the census and the usual parliamentary practice.

We do not suppose that the government is foolish enough to listen to such advice but in case it is not giving the matter sufficient thought it should understand right away that British Columbia will never agree to see its claims to larger representation stalled by political manoeuvres.

Over The Hills And Far Away

THE OTTAWA CITIZEN, THAT worthy pillar of journalism in the national capital, has taken exception to sentiments expressed some time ago in these columns relative to escape from the drudgery of life.

We had praised the decision of a Warwickshire goat farmer to turn his back on the goat houses and their inmates, shake from his feet the dust of goatdom, and set off in search of the lost fortress city of the Queen of Sheba. We saw him as fulfilling the dreams which all of us cherish but which so pitifully few ever implement, and we lauded his courage in stepping from the rut of everyday living to climb the heights of romance and adventure.

Not so, says The Citizen. Goat-raising is as fundamental and as satisfying as hunting for treasure or ruins. Goats demand more fortitude than does the Queen of Sheba. Only the weak forsake their duty and go adventuring, with write-ups in the daily press.

Our contemporary has a nice point there. It may indeed be argued that it takes bravery to endure in obscurity the plodding routine of life as the "little man" lives it; to glimpse the soaring

Yet of one fact she has abundant evidence. She reigns now over a people in whom tradition—a tradition the monarchy has helped to preserve—has implanted steadfastness and perseverance, and the will to fight through to the end.

She ascends the throne, too, as Queen of Canada at a time when this country is continuing to make mature strides towards ever-growing strength and importance in the world. She sees here, as she could probably see nowhere else in the world, a nation growing new sinews, finding fuller confidence and assuming a position of greater respect and influence among other nations.

From her recent tour, the Queen took back to Britain an appreciation of Canada that was not limited to the impressive sights she saw, nor to the demonstrations of loyalty afforded her, but was inspired by a people warm in friendliness and a nation sure in its future.

Through her, and the earnest pledge of fealty given to the Crown, the ties between Britain and the senior Commonwealth partner have been fastened more securely, not in rigid bonds that will snap under strain, but in a pliable association that has withstood past pressures and will withstand others in the future.

What she has seen, and what she has attained in Canada, she will see and attain among other members of the family of nations—a family whose relationships are so baffling to outside observers, but are so strongly felt by its own members.

It is not the moment, now, to parade these facts, though they must be known unconsciously to the Queen. Yet, beyond the sadness of today, they are important elements in the new Elizabethan Age—far different from that of the other queen who bore that name, but one rich in promise despite present dangers.

cal manoeuvres.

This province deserves 22 seats in the Commons and if they are denied will certainly blame the government and take its resentment out on Liberal candidates. It is difficult to imagine the government placing itself in this position to suit some of its prairie supporters.

Redistribution can be arranged by a committee of Parliament—the practice always used in the past—or by a non-partisan commission, as now proposed by Mr. C. G. Power, one of the elder statesmen of the Commons. Either way, the job will take months. The business of drawing electoral boundary lines is extremely complicated even if no partisan motives are at work.

There is much to be said for the commission method which lifts redistribution out of any suspicion of party politics, but the question is whether a commission could complete its report during the present year and enable Parliament to pass a redistribution bill before the next election.

The commission must be set up immediately if it is to finish its work in time. The government will have to decide immediately whether to recommend a commission or a committee to Parliament so that one or the other can begin its studies by spring at latest.

However the redistribution is arranged it must be finished in the 1953 session of Parliament, which presumably will be followed by an election. British Columbia will watch these proceedings vigilantly and demand representation by population.

towers from afar and return the eyes dutifully to the tasks at hand; to breathe the exotic breeze with its faint suggestion of incense, sandalwood and exotic spices, and reject it for the familiar tang of the goat house.

But is it indeed duty that so constrains him? Or is it fear? Does the victim not succumb to the second and greater of two terrors—fear of monotony and fear of the unknown? What virtue can there be in the love of duty of a man for whom even a ride in a strange bus holds anxieties, who would not venture into an unaccustomed barber shop for all the gold in Shabwah?

Most men, said Thoreau, lead lives of quiet desperation. Why desperation? That is not the state of mind of a man courageously hoeing his row, or, as The Citizen suggests, shovelling his walk. The desperation stems from conflict—the mental struggle engendered by man's inherent urge to swagger over the hill and slay a dragon, and the restraining fear that instead sends him meekly to the barn to feed the goats. "The strong stay home," says the Ottawa paper, and we admit it takes strength. But the strongest march away.

A Job For Parents

SOME WEEKS AGO POLICE CHIEF John Blackstock addressed a brief suggestion to Greater Victoria adults. He was discussing an outbreak of juvenile crime and he said: "A little more supervision on the part of the parents would be appreciated and save them and their children trouble in the future."

The chief's words were restrained, probably too restrained. Conceivably he phrased his proposal mildly in recognition of the excellent job of child-raising most parents do in this community. The point has been made before, and bears repetition, that the great majority of youth here is decent, honest and not much noisier than present-day parents were at a similar age.

At the same time, a minority, and it is comparatively small, is guilty of acts that disgust the community and cause substantial loss.

The argument can be advanced that such social misfits are the products of their times. The argument is only as good as parents allow it to be. Certainly some youngsters received inadequate training during wartime, when a father was away from home with the services and when a mother was busy with war work. Probably no part of this continent entirely escaped conditions which developed the "latch-key kid."

These are exceptions that do not qualify the remarks of the chief of police. Honesty and decency are learned in the home and they are learned at an age preceding the late teens, when boys, almost young men, decide to chart their own courses.

Too frequently crimes are reported that could be the early, fumbling efforts of young people headed toward a type of life which will eventually exact a heavier toll on society and in all probability end with the culprits in prison. Burglaries and break-ins are not pranks. They are calculated crimes for gain.

The situation gives point to the remarks of Police Chief Blackstock a few days ago. The warning is clear enough, the advice is sound.

Restraining The Bridge Burners

By WALTER LIPPMANN,
from Washington

HAROLD NICOLSON once said that the art of diplomacy, as that of water colors, has suffered much from the fascination which it exercises upon the amateur. In Washington today there is one way of identifying easily the amateur who causes our suffering diplomacy to suffer unnecessarily. He is the man who feels that he ought to announce publicly and in no uncertain terms what the government will do and what it will never do on all issues in all quarters of the globe.

Lippmann globe.

He cannot seem to understand that the more rigidly he binds our own government the more he reduces its influence, the more he diminishes its power to negotiate—that the more he sets our own policy on one unalterable course, the more numerous the options among which our antagonists and rivals can choose their course.

THESE are the amateurs, some of them wearing uniforms, who think they can solve the Far Eastern problem by a series of public commitments.

They would like to announce what the Air Force will do, what the Navy will do, if an armistice in Korea is signed and is then broken, if an armistice is not signed and is not broken, if Indo-China is invaded by the Chinese, if Indo-China is infiltrated by the Chinese, if Indo-China is supplied a little, if it is supplied more than a little, from China.

They would like to cross all the bridges over all the rivers ahead of them and to burn them all behind them. They believe that the way to impress your enemy is to go Wilson—with his open covanants openly arrived at—one better, and to plump for open war plans openly arrived at.

WHAT they succeed in doing in their clamor for public commitments of this kind is (a) to embarrass the serious and well-informed soldiers and civilians who know what it would mean and what it would cost to make good on all these threats; (b) to alienate great multitudes of the people of Asia, nation which talks much and on so many different occasions about the terrible destruction and human agony it can and may cause; (c) to imprison our diplomacy in the formula of all or nothing—in a self-inflicted straitjacket where it can do nothing by negotiation because that is by definition appeasement and it can do nothing by the big threats because that, in their own sober second thoughts, is suicide.

IN DEALING with allies and friends their idea is that the great victories and the splendid triumphs are those obtained by ringing declarations of affectionate loyalty which have been signed on the dotted line. They want every country to stand up, to line up, and to be in Moscow as well as in Washington.

They cannot imagine any longer how any decent country in the world could have the same foreign policy which the United States had from the time of George Washington to Pearl Harbor. They cannot see how that country might have such a policy for the same reasons that we had it, because it is too weak and too exposed, and because its interests are too separate, to entangle itself in the alliances of the great powers.

THEY have not understood how often those who sign up the most easily, who proclaim themselves the most loudly, are the very ones which it is least prudent to count upon. The cynical and the corrupt will shrug their shoulders and sign anything quickly, if that is the quickest way to get the money. These clients and hangers-on should not be mistaken for true allies, whose confidence and respect it must always be our object to have—and to hold.

THERE is no reason to doubt that all of this, or at least much of it, is actuated by the best of intentions. Those who want to leave the Communists in no doubt whatever about our reaction to another aggression are hoping to apply one of the great lessons of the two world wars; namely, that if Germany had known America would intervene at once and on a grand scale, she would not have begun those wars.

They are right in insisting that Moscow and Peking should not think that the debate about whether we would intervene against military aggression.

Where they go wrong is in wanting to specify how we would intervene, in wishing to publish what is tantamount to a blueprint of the horrors that would follow our intervention.

THAT is to cross the thin, the subtle, but the fateful line between a guaranty and a threat, and between a diplomatic strategy which is designed to deter and one that is calculated to terrify. It is in the region of that line that the amateurs need most particularly to be restrained, indeed to hold their tongues and be silent. For a great power can be deterred, and believe that by renouncing big ambitions it can still have peace and security for itself, and that therefore it has nothing to gain by war and everything to lose. But if a great power is terrorized, it may come to believe that war is inevitable, and that everything depends on not losing it.

Shock

G.V.F. in The Montreal Star

Americans by and large spent many years regarding themselves as friends of an India ground down by British imperialist pressures. They have not yet recovered from the shock of discovering that the free and independent India of today fears the United States more than any other country on earth.

Hoping For The Worst

Under Our Roof

By JOHN RHODES STURDY

NOW that Col. S. Skeffington-Smutts (Ret.) and his bride Anastasia (nee Wiggs-Wiggs) have left on their honeymoon in Esquimalt, this quiet around the old homestead. Of course there is still Hamish, while Little Augie continues to manufacture his extra special pale home brew in daytime and carries on his furtive business transactions by night, yet the house is a little less crowded and my family and I are sleeping indoors for a change. Very peaceful.

At least that was the case up until yesterday. It was yesterday that our small son came down to breakfast and announced that he had been bitten during the night.

"Who bit you?" I demanded furiously. "Nobody's going to bite a son of mine and get away with it!"

"Watch your blood pressure, Pop," the small fry said. "It's only a little bite. Here, look."

Well, it seemed he had been bitten all right. "Probably a mosquito," I suggested, trying to pass the whole thing off as nothing. But I could see the horror in my wife's eyes. She rushed the boy into a bath and I could smell carbolic soap and maybe turpentine.

"It happens in the best of families," Hamish remarked philosophically. He eyed me. "What are you scratching for?"

"I'm not! Now listen, Hamish, we've got to get to the bottom of this. Something is biting my son. Let's go and take his room apart."

"You know," said Hamish half an hour later, "I think it's ants."

Well, I knew the answer to that one. I dashed downstairs to the kitchen and grabbed hold of Little Augie.

"The house is full of ants!" I shouted. "And you're the cause of it. You and that sickly home brew you make. All that brown sugar and malt—that's what the ants are after. And on their way to get it they're stopping to bite my son." Little Augie burst into tears, but I was so angry I didn't care. For once I completely ignored his sensitive soul and let him run out of the house—I just didn't care.

My wife came into the kitchen and I turned to her. "Dearest—" I began. "Don't you dearest me!" she screamed. "It's all your fault. You and your precious guests. Filling my house with them. It's your fault that my poor little boy is being bitten to death!"

"Oh, pipe down!" "Oh—how dare you talk to me like that, you—vampire! I'm taking my son with me and we're leaving right now. I wouldn't spend another minute in this house with you!"

It was at this point that Hamish appeared. "Pardon me," he said. "I'll be back later." And he walked out the door.

"Darling—"

But my wife was gone, too, and the small son with her.

Well, of course, in the end I went looking for them. I found my wife and child in the village and after a lot of persuasion and crow-eating I managed to get them to return with me and try to start a new life together. And on the way back we came across Little Augie sitting on the side of the road, sobbing, and I convinced him, too.

There was a large sign tacked on our gate. "Danger," it said. "These premises are under fumigation. Beware of poisonous gases. (Signed) Hamish, pest-control expert and official exterminator."

So we spent the night in the shed. And it was some time during the wee hours of the morning that the small son piped up: "Hey, Ma, Pop—I'm being bitten again!"

We lit a lantern hurriedly and inspected him. There were a lot of red spots on his tummy, and suddenly my wife looked across at me.

"Hives," she said almost humbly. Well, that's what they were, but just try and convince the neighbors. They saw Hamish's sign. Now, when I go into the village, I notice that people try not to get too close.

Old Custom

The Printed Word

Gregory the Great, who became pope in the year 590, is credited with the origin of a custom that has endured for more than 13 centuries. At the time of his accession a plague was raging in Rome, with many deaths occurring daily. As the early symptoms of the disease were fits of sneezing and yawning, Gregory decreed that a blessing should be pronounced whenever a person sneezed and that the sign of the cross should be made over the mouth of anyone who yawned.

Whether this measure had any therapeutic value or not, the epidemic ceased, and the first part of Gregory's decree survives in the custom of saying "God bless you!" or its equivalent when a person sneezes. History does not relate when the second part of the decree fell into disuse, but it may be conjectured that this occurred with the rise of the after-dinner speaker.

The custom of making crosses over the yawning mouths would lead to more commotion than was seemingly in a captive audience. Or it may be that the mannerly habit of covering the yawning mouth is a relic, now without religious significance, of the great pope.

OLD AGE PENSION

Some of your correspondents about this matter state that this pension will only be paid to Canadian citizens. Undoubtedly many others think likewise. Some of them probably amongst the 4,000 in B.C. who have not yet applied for receipt of said pension.

They are mistaken. Any resident of Canada, who has lived here 20 years, is entitled to said pension. It will help some, Mr. Editor, if you will print this, I, myself, got my first hint about this some time ago from a letter in your columns from a former social security worker.

SMELLS AS SWEET?

Name-changing is a convenient device for blotting out historic memories inimical to long-term totalitarian aims. "Call Persia 'Persia,' not Iran," Mr. Churchill is reported to have heatedly told the Mother of Parliaments some years ago. Presumably Mr. Churchill would have no legitimate cause for objection had this change been the act of the Persian government of that time—but this name-changing was the act of an international gang.

Encyclopedia says "Iran" is derived from "Aryan," that it was so named in mythological times.

For some obscure reason I've always disliked the word "Aryan," possibly on account of its association with historic hubbub—even before Hitler so diabolically associated this word with anti-Semitism.

English newspapers, to their lasting credit, call Persia "Persia." It would be refreshing if this newspaper would do the same.

LOVES DEMOCRACY

Recent news in your paper to the effect that the United States singer, comrade Paul Robeson has been held in Seattle by the United States authorities after having been intercepted in an attempt to leave the United States to visit some of his Red cronies in Canada shows that at least the United States government is awake to the menace which his ilk hold for the cause of democracy, and for this awakening, even if long belated, they are to be congratulated.

The unfortunate part of this matter is that it should have fallen on the U.S. authorities to keep this Red gentleman out of Canada. What is the matter with the security regulations in force (?) in Canada that such a Moscow-minded comrade should have free access to our country?

If events in which comrade Robeson has participated in Moscow, Paris and various parts of the United States were not sufficient to indicate the menace inherent in aliens of his kind then surely his past performances on the concert stage in Canada should have been more than sufficient for Canadian authorities to raise the "not wanted" sign.

This lackadaisical attitude is on a par with the permission which apparently is still extended to the embassy employees of the U.S.S.R. in Ottawa to roam all over this country, as witness the recent appearance of a Kremlin flunkie at the local trial of some lawbreaker. The writer understands that Canadian, American, British, etc., embassy members in Moscow are limited to a 30-mile area, in which to observe the activities of the Red parade.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"IN A WAY," said the Elevator Man, "I guess we're all, guinea pigs of one kind or another. In an age that depends on experiment as much as we do, it's pretty hard to avoid being used now and then as the subject of tests. Manufacturers pick selected communities to try out their new products on. Politicians pick audiences to try their new ideas on, or to see if their old ideas will still be swallowed. We use each other. Joe Doakes tries out a new story on his bus neighbor before springing it on the office crowd. Mrs. Doakes gets the okay from the bridge club on her new hat before sailing out into the main channel with it at a big reception. And Junior tries out some new dodge on Mum before attempting to put it over on Dad. Even nations do it. Small wars provide excellent opportunities to try out weapons that will be needed in big wars. You might say the whole world is based on the guinea pig system, with the global motto: Try it on the dog. Lower main!"

"Of course," said the Elevator Man, "a lot of people object. They don't like, say, the idea of a cat being used in experiments to discover cures for babies' ailments. And you can't blame them. No decent person likes to think of suffering being inflicted on any living creature, or of lives being cut off before their time. But concern for the babies is likely to win out over concern for the cats. And in any case you can hardly say that the human race discriminates against cats. We do things to our fellow man that no one would dream of inflicting on a cat. We're very fair about it—in a sort of a way. Going down!"

"It helps a lot," said the Elevator Man, "if the guinea pig is willing. But it's a role that you may not live long to enjoy. People these days can't be blamed if they feel a little like the official taster in the days of the Borgias, when poison in the soup was a constant threat. 'Steady, this may hurt a little,' they're told, 'as somebody tries out a new bomb, or a new trade policy, or a new tax, and they're apt to get a little restive. They're in something the spot of the husband who said, 'You'll never make that dog obey you,' and the wife replied, 'Nonsense. It only needs patience. I had a lot of trouble with you at first.'"

New Promotion Plan Approved By V.F.D. Men

Change in promotional system and a 62-year retirement age for the chief is approved in Victoria Fire Department's annual report made known Thursday.

Retirement age for the chief at present is 60 years. Recommendations for the changes were made by the B.C. Underwriters' Association after a survey of the department last year. Acting Fire Chief F. W. Briers attached the recommendations to his annual report and stated he concurred "in so far as funds are available for the necessary implementation."

The Underwriters recommended that the promotional system be based on examination as well as seniority and record, to enable younger men to become officers with resulting longer terms in senior ranks.

"Retirement should be at 62 except in cases of unusual efficiency," the Underwriters felt.

All Seats Filled For 'Y' Bus Tour

Bob Morrison, program convener of the Y.M.C.A. announced today reservations for a Victoria bus chartered for an international tour in Canada and the U.S. this summer have been filled.

The "Y" executive stated, however, arrangements are being made to book any extra Victorians wishing to make the trip on a bus leaving from Seattle. A third bus will make the trip from Vancouver.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

VICTORIA'S SUNSHINE RECORD TO DATE, 1952—55.7 HOURS

SYNOPSIS: Storm activity in the eastern Pacific continues to cause strong winds and rain over the more northern sections of the B.C. coast and cloudy skies over the remainder of the province. With a gradual trend to the south and east of this activity, it is expected that in the next 36 hours precipitation will spread to other sections of the province.

Gales which are now occurring along the north coast will slacken today as one storm moves inland but are expected to develop again tonight as another storm moves toward the coast.

Temperatures will continue mild throughout the province as the flow of moist maritime air persists.

REGIONAL FORECASTS VALID UNTIL MIDNIGHT SATURDAY

VICTORIA: Cloudy with a few showers tonight. Cloudy Saturday with intermittent rain through the morning and afternoon. Little change in temperature. Winds: light easterly at Vancouver, 20 and 40; at Victoria, 40 and 45.

WEST COAST: Nearly continuous rain Saturday. Little change in temperature. Winds: southeast 10 overnight, increasing again to southeast 20 Saturday morning. Low: tonight and high Saturday, 40 and 45.

GEORGIA STRAIT: Intermittent rain tonight and Saturday. Continuing mild. Winds: southeast 25 overnight, increasing again to southeast 20 Saturday morning. Low: tonight and high Saturday at Vancouver, 40 and 45; at Victoria, 40 and 45.

False Alarms Harassing Firemen Trough Year

Victoria Fire Department answered 92 false alarms in 1951, according to Acting Chief F. W. Briers' report, released at City Hall Thursday.

Of a total of 897 alarms, the greatest number, 287, involved chimney fires. Next on the list came grass and bush fires with 95 and then false alarms.

There were 66 alarms for rubbish fires; 60 calls were "service was not required"; 29 for smoke scares; 21 for smokers' carelessness.

Included in the calls was one for animals in distress; nine for children playing with matches; five for firecrackers; five for kitchen grease and 11 for locked rooms.

There are now 151 street fire alarm box installations. Included are six new ones recently installed at Richmond and Despard, Fort and Cook, Gorge and Balfour, Fairfield and Thurlow, Craigflower and Coventry, and Douglas and Francis.

Cope With Mourning Band Rush

OTTAWA, Feb. 8 (CP)—The Army headquarters' tailor came off leave and worked all Wednesday night and off into Thursday to cope with an order that all military officers should wear black armbands in mourning for the King.

Anticipating the rush, Sgt. J. H. Hall of Ottawa, halted his leave, bought many yards of black broadcloth at a store up-town, lined up several special assistants and went to work Wednesday night.

They were still working when the lines started to form early this morning. Sgt. Hall figured

Korea Troops To Resume Rotation

OTTAWA, Feb. 8 (CP)—The rotation plan for 25th Brigade units in Korea will swing back into stride next month, the army announced Thursday. It should be completed by the end of June. The system started last fall when the 1st Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry replaced the 2nd Battalion, Canada's originals in Korea.

The rotation plan calls for return to Canada of all soldiers who have served for 12 months in the Far East, soldiers in the units slated for replacement who are ineligible will be returned man for man on completion of 12 months.

No Monotony In Village Job

DEGRAFF, O., Feb. 8 (AP)—Virgil Farr won't lack for variety in his new job. The village council of this western Ohio community hired him Wednesday at a salary of $3,000 a year to be: 1. Police chief; 2. water superintendent; 3. street cleaner; 4. fire department janitor; and 5. city hall clean-up man.

Canadian Regiment and the Royal 22nd Regiment are to be replaced by the 1st Battalions of the same units, starting in late March and finishing in May.

The 57th Field Squadron, R.C.E., 54th Transport Company, R.C.A.S.C. and 25th Field Ambulance, R.C.A.M.C. will be relieved on a company group basis.

"C" Squadron of Lord Strathcona's Horse is to be replaced in June by another squadron from Calgary.

During April, May and June, batteries of the 2nd R.C.H.A. will embark for home and will be replaced by batteries of the 1st R.C.H.A.

Churchill Lauds King's Memory

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP)—This is the text of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's broadcast Thursday night on the death of King George VI and the ascension of Queen Elizabeth II:

My friends, when the death of the King was announced to us yesterday morning there struck a deep and solemn note in our lives which as it resounded far and wide stilled the clatter and traffic of 20th century life in many lands and made countless millions of human beings pause and look around them.

A new sense of values took for the time being possession of his mind. His most exalted presented itself to so many at the same moment in its serenity and its sorrow, in its splendor and in its pain, in its fortitude and in its suffering.

The King was greatly loved by all his peoples. He was respected as a man and as a husband and father in his own family circle, his courage in war or peace—all these were aspects of his character which won a glint of admiration, now here, now there, from unimpaired eyes whose gaze fell upon the throne.

We thought of him as a young naval lieutenant in the Battle of Jutland. We thought of him when calmly, when without ambition or want of self-confidence, he assumed the heavy burden of the Crown and succeeded his brother, whom he loved and to whom he had devoted perfect loyalty. We thought of him as faithful in his study and discharge of state affairs; so strong in his devotion to the enduring honor of our country, so self-restrained in his judgments of men and affairs; so uplifted above the clash of party politics yet so attentive to them, so wise and shrewd in judging between what matters and what does not.

WE SAW, ADMIRER... All this we saw and admired. His conduct on the Throne may well be a model and a guide to constitutional sovereigns throughout the world today and also in future generations.

The last few months of King George's life with all the pangs and physical stresses that he endured—his life hanging by a thread from day to day—and he all the time cheerful and undaunted—stricken in body but quite undisturbed and even unaffected in spirit—these have made a profound and an enduring impression and should be a help to all.

He was sustained not only by his natural buoyancy but by the sincerity of his Christian faith.

During these last months the King walked with death as if death were a companion, an acquaintance whom he recognized and did not fear. In the end death came as a friend and after a happy day of sunshine and sport. After "good night" to those who loved him best, he fell asleep as every man and woman who strives to fear God and nothing else in the world may hope to do.

The nearer one stood to him the more these facts were apparent. But the newspapers and photographs of modern times have made vast numbers of his subjects able to watch with emotion the last months of his pilgrimage. We all saw him approach his journey's end.

In this period of mourning and meditation—amid our cares and toils every home in all the realms joined together under the Crown may draw comfort for tonight, and strength for the future, from his bearing and fortitude.

A UNITED FAMILY There was another tie between King George and his people. It was not only sorrow and affliction that they shared. Dear to the hearts and the homes of the people is the joy and pride of a united family. With all this the troubles of the world can be borne and all its ordeals at least confronted. No family in these tumultuous years was happier or loved one another more than the Royal Family around the King.

My friends, I suppose—I'm sure—no minister saw so much of the King as I did. I made certain he was kept informed of every secret matter and the care and thoroughness with which he mastered the immense daily flow of state papers made a deep mark on my mind.

Let me tell you another fact. On one of the days when Buckingham Palace was bombed, the King had just returned from Windsor. One side of the courtyard was struck; and if the windows opposite out of which, by the grace of God, he and the Queen were looking had not been open, they would both have been blinded by the broken glass instead of being only thrown back by the explosion.

Amid all that was then going on, although I saw the King so often, I never heard of this episode until a long time afterwards. Their Majesties never mentioned it or thought of it of more significance than a soldier in their armies would of a shell bursting near him.

This seems to me to be a revealing trait in the Royal character. There is no doubt that all the institutions which have grown up among us over the centuries or sprung into being in our lifetime, the constitutional monarchy is the most deeply founded and dearly cherished by the whole association of our peoples.

MYSTERIOUS LINK

In the present generation it has acquired a meaning incomparably more powerful than any one had dreamed possible in former times. The Crown has become the mysterious link, indeed I may say the magic link which united our loosely bound but strongly interwoven commonwealth of nations, states and races.

Peoples who would never tolerate the assertions of a written constitution which implied any diminution of their independence are the foremost to be proud of their loyalty to the Crown.

We have been greatly blessed amid our many anxieties and in the mighty world that has grown up all around our small island, we have been greatly blessed that this new, intangible, inexplicable, but, for practical purposes, apparently all-powerful element of union, should have leaped into being among us.

How vital it is, not only to the future of the British Commonwealth and Empire but, I believe also, to the cause of world freedom and peace which we serve, that the occupant of the throne should be equal to the august and indefinable responsibilities which this supreme office requires.

For 15 years King George VI was King. Never at any moment in all the perplexities at home and abroad, in public or in private, did he fail in his duties. Well does he deserve the farewell salute of all his governments and peoples.

OUR HEARTS GO OUT My friends, it is at this time that our compassion and sympathy go out to his consort and widow. Their marriage was a love match with no idea of regal pomp or splendor. Indeed, there seemed to lie before them only the arduous life of royal personages, denied so many of the activities of ordinary folk and having to give so much in ceremonial public service.

May she be granted strength to bear her sorrow. To Queen Mary, his mother—another son is dead. The Duke of Kent having been killed in active service—there belongs the consolation of seeing how well the King did his duty and fulfilled his hopes, and of knowing how much he cared for her. Now I must leave the treasures of the past and turn to the future.

Famous have been the reigns of our queens. Some of the greatest periods in our history have unfolded under their sceptre.

ALREADY ACCLAIMED Now that we have a second Queen Elizabeth also ascending the throne in her 26th year, our thoughts are carried back nearly 400 years to the magnificent figure who presided over and, in many ways, embodied and inspired the grandeur and genius of the Elizabethan age.

Queen Elizabeth II, like her predecessor, did not pass her childhood in any certain expectation of the crown.

But already we know how well, and we understand why, her gifts and those of her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, have stirred the only part of our Commonwealth she has yet been able to visit.

She has already been acclaimed as Queen of Canada.

We make our claim, and others will come forward too, and tomorrow the proclamation of her sovereignty will command the loyalty of her native land and of all other parts of the British Commonwealth and Empire. I, whose youth was cast in the august, unchallenged, and tranquil glories of the Victorian era, may well feel a thrill in evoking once more the prayer and anthem, God Save the Queen.

Anything For Baseball, But Really . . . !

You've heard of the sextet from Lucia di Lammermoor. Well at radio station CKDA Thursday night, thousands of listeners were subjected to the wailings of the infamous quartet from hunger, composed of men who are tops in their business but whose singing is composed of nine parts enthusiasm to every part of skill. Had it not been for the fact that (left to right) announcer Ed Fary, Times publisher Stuart Keate, Rebel Mowat and Attorney-General Gordon Wismer were singing in aid of the "Save Baseball Fund" at the second baseball jam-boree, it is likely that irate citizens would have stormed the station in indignation.

Royals First On Cougars 'Make-Break' Schedule

On the OUTDOOR FRONT
By ROY THORSEN

Following Thursday night's first meeting of the 1952 executive of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, our speculation is that this summer's salmon derby program in Saanich Inlet will be more attractive to the prize-seeking fishermen than ever before.

President Wil Wilson and his crew are definitely going to put on another 10-week ladder derby. It will start later than last year's event—and there is a very good possibility that the derby will be season's program will be teed off with a bang on one-day derby with a rich prize list. However, details of all derby plans will not be decided until Wilson calls a further meeting. It may be going out on the limb a bit, but our bet is that the prize design for this year's ladder derby will see more prizes—worth about $3,000—at stake for those fishermen who stay on the weekly rungs to qualify for the climactic fishoff. Rumor is the executive have in mind a neat cabin job boat—a 13-footer with a seven-foot beam—as the first prize for the fishoff boys and girls to shoot for. It costs about $1,900, and further, is powered with a 25 horsepower outboard (which can be used for high speed or for fishing trolling pace). If the boat is what we have in mind it will have facilities to sleep two and room in the cockpit for at least four deck chairs without crowding.

If that happens to be the No. 1 prize for the closing phase of the ladder event, there will be other attractive prizes for the fish-offers who watch the second and third biggest fish.

inlet. Since then, logging has been stopped except for a certain strip just about opposite Goldstream Inlet.

"That view from the Malahat Drive is the loveliest I've ever seen and I've traveled a good deal over this continent of ours," was the opinion expressed by one of the executive.

Committees of the anglers' club appointed were. Dave Gray was elected overall chairman of derbies. ("We can't do without him," was the meeting's opinion).

Ladder derby—Heglin, Johnny Angus, Capt. Cruchley, Wes Fulton and Williams.

Anglers-Times In Solarium Show

Solarium derby—Harry Woolston, sole organizer of the show—"and the Victoria Times publisher Stuart Keate promises us the same all-out support we got last year in a dual-sponsor arrangement," said the veteran angler.

(This means the anglers and Times will again co-sponsor the big event to get money for the institution caring for crippled kiddies of this province).

Finance committee: Dave Donaldson; second vice-president Angus and Ritchie.

The job of supervising the turn-out of the annual year book was turned over to Secretary Douglas Cruchley, Wilson, and Heglin. Gray, Heglin and Cruchley were named as the members who will be the tackle and investigation committee—the boys who have the job of seeing that all fishermen in competition and otherwise Things are never so bad that they can't get worse, so the saying goes.

Or . . . good, better, best; never let it rest till the good is the better and the better, best.

It's one or the other for Victoria Cougars starting tonight at Memorial Arena against New Westminster Royals, lords of all they survey in the Pacific Coast Hockey League, a territory that includes the other seven clubs.

For, commencing tonight the Cougars embark upon a schedule that even the Athletic Booster Club would hesitate in tackling.

In the space of 22 days—nights rather—the Cougars will play 12 games. And on these games will hinge their plans for the future—that future beginning with the final game of the Pacific Coast Hockey League season in Seattle March 23.

After tonight, it's a visit to New Westminster Saturday and Vancouver Tuesday.

Then home again against the sizzling Rockets from Tacoma next Thursday following which is a double weekend date in Tacoma and Seattle, Feb. 16 and 17.

Vancouver is due here Tuesday, Feb. 19; Seattle, Feb. 22. Then the Cougars hit the road for the prairies stopping first at New Westminster, Feb. 23.

Games on successive nights at Calgary, Edmonton and Saskatoon won't make the task any simpler. And just to close out the junket properly the Royals will be waiting to cap the month's festivities here on Feb. 29.

RUGGED . . . !

During the grind the Cougars meet the Royals four times, Tacoma twice, Seattle twice, Vancouver twice and Prairie clubs once.

Rugged, perhaps, but the luck of the draw.

And so, tonight's the night—five points behind Vancouver, two back of Calgary with games in hand over both clubs . . . the sixth place the objective . . . the Cougars embark on their duties.

MILLER MISSING

And unless left winger Jack Miller has managed to find his way to Victoria from Calgary in the meantime, the Cougars will lose the same club which, in its last three starts, has tied the Stampede, 3-3, blanked Vancouver, 4-0, and lost to Edmonton, 1-0.

The pendulum starts swinging at 8:30.

CARPET BOWLING

Matches scheduled next week in the Capital City and District Carpet Bowling League follow:

Monday—Sherrard vs. St. Louis; Wilcox Park vs. C.C.F.

Tuesday—T. Bridges and Pansell vs. H. Bates and G. Bridges; McMillan and Dorey vs. Colin and Harrison.

Wednesday—F. Bridge and Jenkins vs. Whittle and Stanley; McKenzie and Thackeray vs. Bolton and Drummond.

GORGE PAIR IN EIGHTH DEFENSE

Gorge Vale wonder boys Bob Fleming and John Meriman will make their eighth defense of their city senior golf buttons Sunday when they take on Bill McColl and Vic Painter of Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club at the Colwood course.

Play is scheduled to begin at 12:30.

McMorran's Enter Lower Island Final

McMorran's Motor Court intermediate B boys' basketball team Thursday night moved into the lower Island final by whipping Lake Cowichan 54-40 in the second and final game of their total point series at Sooke.

McMorran's won the opening game of the series at Cowichan Monday night to take the round, 115-87.

Cowichan gave the Saanich champions a terrific battle before bowing out, trailing by but one point on the game at half-time as McMorran's went into the intermission sporting a 23-22 edge.

Dobbie Stuart was high man for the Saanich club with 20 points.

McMorran's will now meet the city championship Mount View side in the lower Island final.

The game is in aid of the association injured player's fund, which has taken a beating this season through a flurry of serious injuries, and Cliff Robbins of Legion who is recovering from a broken jaw sustained when he collided with a teammate.

Both clubs are "up" for the game. A win for the all-stars would be a tremendous accomplishment while United will get a great workout from the stars which will prime them for the forthcoming Anderson Cup play-downs.

Island Hoop Play Resumes At Vic High

Hoop play-offs will resume again Saturday at Victoria High School gym with the feature game being the second of a best-of-three series between Dickinson & Dunn and Scott & Peden for the city intermediate A men's title.

The opener went to the Tiresmen Wednesday night.

MacDonald's will meet Duncan in the second fixture of a two-game total-point series for the Lower Island senior B women's title. Thanks to their 62-17 win over the Up-Islanders in the opening game, MacDonald's hold a 45-point lead.

The opener will bring St. Louis College and Tillicums together in the second contest of a best-of-three series for the midget boys' city finals. Tillicums hold a one-game lead.

First game starts at 7.

ABEL HERE TO RENDER JUDGMENT

Baseball Goes To Jury Today

By BILL WALKER

Radio was murdered in the cause of baseball Thursday night. The case goes to the jury today.

Little did Guglielmo Marconi realize when he put his talk box on the market that such transgressions would be perpetrated as went on the air in the final all-out assault on the "save baseball" fund drive over station CKDA.

And when the defense, ably led by Rebel Mowat whose oratory was only matched by the recitative qualities of Rev. "Bill" Hills and the Shakespearean virtuos of Maurice Humber, had rested, only president Robert Abel of the Western International League knew what the verdict would be.

For Abel checks into town today—he missed Thursday's show because of previous commitments—and he'll immediately audit the bank balance on which the A's future rests.

The show netted almost $2,000 which, with previous contributions and pledges brings the Athletic Booster Club total up to over $11,000 in cash and better than $15,000 with pledges.

A complete tally of business firm pledges was not available at press time, but unofficially it is believed that this sum matches the Booster Club cash intake.

But back to the show—final figures expected to be revealed during consultations with Abel later today.

Mowat told stories—some bordering on the impossible and . . . virtuosic but all in the inimitable Mowat fashion.

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer, Mowat, Ed Fary, and Times publisher Stuart Keate sang (?) for a price. Mrs. Wismer gave her views. Honorable Nancy Hodges, Speaker of the Legislature, spoke of the value of baseball as a recreational facility for servicemen; Colonist Publisher Seth Halton mentioned the intrinsic values of the sport to the city . . . these and many others.

But when the five-hour show had ended, there was cause for alarm because the response had been mediocre, despite the spontaneity of the performances.

"The air," one listener remarked, "had been polluted," and baseball had, or had not, been saved.

Abel will render judgment today, or ask for a jury decision by the W.I.L. directors in Seattle, Saturday.

A LITTLE FLAVOR of baseball season was injected into Victoria Thursday as Bert Hayward (left) and Bill Reid, energetic members of the Athletic Booster Club, donned A's uniforms and paraded the streets to make people baseball conscious as the monster funds drive drew to a close. After their long day they quipped, "Feels like we just played a doubleheader. Feet are killing us."

All-Stars Have Nothing To Lose In United Match

Just how good are the best players in the Victoria and District Football Association? Can they stack up against a Coast Soccer League team? And are local fans willing to help out players who have been injured while playing?

These questions will be answered Saturday at Athletic Park when the V. & D. all-stars meet Victoria United of the Coast Soccer League in a benefit match at 2:30.

The game is in aid of the association injured player's fund, which has taken a beating this season through a flurry of serious injuries, and Cliff Robbins of Legion who is recovering from a broken jaw sustained when he collided with a teammate.

Both clubs are "up" for the game. A win for the all-stars would be a tremendous accomplishment while United will get a great workout from the stars which will prime them for the forthcoming Anderson Cup play-downs.

Stamps Gain Another Point

Small steps in the right direction were taken Thursday night in the Pacific Coast Hockey League by Calgary Stamp-eders and Saskatoon Quakers.

The only teams active, they played to a 5-5 tie in a wide-open game at Saskatoon. The slight boost put Quakers within four points of the leading New Westminster Royals and placed Stamps a full game ahead of the cellar Victoria Cougars.

While the game ended in a deadlock, a Calgary player was the star of the contest. The veteran Norm Larson led the Calgary attack with three goals.

Ernie Dickens and Cy Thomas were the other Calgary marksmen, a brace of assists each going to George Agar and Bing Jukes.

Defensive Stars: Chuck McCulloch, Cy Rouse, Alex Kaleta and Neil Strain blasted in goals for Saskatoon. Carl Kaiser and Johnnie Chad head the assist parade with two apiece.

GAMBLE WORKS

Saskatoon coach Doug Bentley pulled goaltender Lorne Wesley at 18:45 of the last period in a gamble for the tying goal. Strain came through 40 seconds before the final whistle.

The first period ended in a 2-2 tie and Calgary led 4-3 at the end of the second. Quakers outscored Stamps 2-1 in the third.

Tonight, Edmonton Flyers will be aiming for their third straight win of a coast invasion when they go against Vancouver Canucks.

Vernon Takes Second Place In Ice Loop

The Okanagan Senior Amateur Hockey League held the right cards last night in intersectional games with the Western International loop.

Neither of the W.I.L. teams Spokane Flyers and Kimberley Dynamiters—could get any more than two goals. And two goals were far from enough.

Vernon Canadians stepped into undisputed possession of second place in the Okanagan League, at least for the moment, with a 5-2 win at home over Flyers.

Kelowna Packers are only one game behind Canadians.

Penticton V's, in the Okanagan cellar, exploded for a 7-2 win over Kimberley, the sixth straight loss on the road for Dynamiters.

Trail Smoke Eaters pumped in three overtime goals to edge Nelson Maple Leafs 8-6 in a regulation Western International game. It was the third straight loss for Nelson.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

Timmy the Flying Squirrel and his friends of his own kind are playful folk. They long ago learned how important play is in living. In this respect they are very like the Otter folk. You know Little Joe Otter dearly loves to play, and manages to get in a little play every day.

There is another way in which Timmy the Flying Squirrel and Little Joe Otter are very much alike. Both dearly love to slide. But their ways of sliding are very different. Timmy climbs to the top of a tall tree, jumps off and glides a long way to near the foot of another tree. What he is really doing is sliding on the air. Little Joe Otter finds a steep bank beside deep water, and makes himself a slippery slide. But they hadn't forgotten. The next moment not a Squirrel nor a Squirrel was to be seen anywhere. Peter waited and waited, but not a single one of his merry little neighbors showed himself.

"Now what is the matter?" thought Peter.

Then without warning of any kind, a big dark form appeared above the treetops and seemed to drift across that open space. It didn't glide. Two great wings were moving, but they were moving slowly and without a sound. Peter crouched a little closer to the trunk of the tree, and wished he could crawl under something. He saw two great round yellow eyes looking this way and that way, and was sure they must see him. It was Hooty the Great Horned Owl. Someone had been watching for danger, and given the alarm.

Boom Sweeps Weathermen In Its Wake

Canada's northern border is taking the federal meteorological service along with it at a furious pace. Pat D. McTaggart-Cowan, assistant controller, Toronto, said here Thursday.

"Developments in Labrador, northern prairies, your own Kitchener, and expanding national defense are straining our service to the utmost," he said. "Any college graduate with mathematics and physics has a sure job with us."

He finished an eastern trip to all weather stations before Christmas and is now winding up a western tour.

"I thumb rides on air lines going every which way," he laughed.

A regular airlift is running into the Hollinger-Ungava iron ore properties, he said, where five large aircraft fly 300 hours each per month.

"They now have nine airstrips, all one-way, and use castoring landing gear," the weather boss said. "It gives you a funny feeling to go up and down a runway sideways, but it means a lot to the operators."

Improvements here

Despite world-shaking developments all over the country, the Gonzales Observatory is due for improvements.

"We hope to make it the show place it was 30 years ago," he said, "and be able to show people what we do."

People in all walks of life are becoming more weather-conscious, he said.

"Take the farmer. His margin is getting smaller, but with his modern machinery he can take advantage of the weather as long as he has advance notice."

Election Violence Boosts Toll To 25

TEHRAN, Feb. 8 (AP).—Reported deaths in Iranian national election demonstrations mounted to 25 Thursday when three persons were reported killed at Khorramabad. Fighting started when a crowd protesting election control arrangements refused to disperse.

STEP ON GAS—AND INTO WOE

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8 (AP).—One minute Ruben Bakko was driving along Van Ness Avenue Friday.

This is what happened in the next minute, police say:

His pickup truck collided with a car, went out of control, jumped a curb, jumped a retaining wall, knocked a trailer 25 feet, tore out a section of fence, hit a tree, hit a house and knocked a woman occupant off a couch.

Bakko, 41, nursing only a headache, told officers he got stuck on the gas instead of the brake. No one was hurt.

SCOUTS AND CUBS AFIELD Troops, Packs Will Mark Baden-Powell Birthday

By FREEMAN KING

Executive Scout Commissioner

February is a particularly busy month for those connected with scouting.

In addition to a number of special indoor events, several field trips have been scheduled and arrangements made for observance later in the month of the birthday of the late Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout Movement.

Last week-end, those enrolled in the scoutmasters' course took to the woods for instruction in mapping, tracking, axmanship, mountain climbing and emergency first aid.

Each man was required to light his own fire and cook his own dinner as part of the training.

Two members of the Lions Own Rover Crew recently set out on a three-day cross-country expedition. They reported a fine time and, despite the weather, enjoyed sleeping out.

Respect of all within the scouting movement here was won by two boys who ventured out on their first-class journey despite heavy rain. One was from the James Bay troop, the other from George Vale.

Latest scouts to be invested

as Rover Scout are Harold Harrison and Jack McBay. Their investiture was made at a ceremony in Christ Church Cathedral. Bishop N. Halward officiated.

Following the service, a reception was held in Scout Headquarters when district commissioner E. A. Estlin opened the new Rover den.

Further evidence of Scout growth in this area is the registering of a new Scout troop by the Belmont division.

Coming events: A bronze arrowhead course for patrol leaders will be held this week-end at Sidney for boys from Sidney, Royal Oak, Cordova Bay, Deep Cove and Saanichton. A Sidney group committee has agreed to feed the boys taking the course.

Everyone is invited to the scouts' Baden-Powell party to be held in the Marigold Scout Hall Feb. 23.

Boy Scouts Reach Membership Peak

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP).—The Boy Scouts of America reached an all-time membership peak last year, with 2,942,779 youngsters and adult leaders enrolled as of Dec. 31, officials reported recently.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Close to 500,000 feet of lumber for U.K. were loaded today on Ss. Mount Athos, of Greek registry, at Ogden Point. She also carries 1,000 tons of grain, and will top off with more lumber at Port Alberni.

Capt. M. Scarvell is master; King Bros. Ltd., agents, and Canadian Stevedoring stowed the cargo.

City Council today was asked to authorize expenditure of $1,343 for grading and planting of lawns and a minimum of flower beds and shrubbery on health and welfare building grounds, Cook Street.

Cost would be charged to the health and welfare building construction account.

Saanich court of revision opened today at Saanich municipal hall with 70 appeals to consider.

A length session is indicated since the court last year took three days to dispose of 29 appeals.

The court consists of the whole of the municipal council.

It is believed the large number of appeals this year is caused by the recent reassessment program in Saanich, whereby in the last year the assessor's department has brought properties throughout a large portion of the municipality into line with others.

Rotary Club members heard speaker Dr. Simon Marinker tell them Thursday "State medicine has no place in any free democracy."

He said it should be instituted and practised only in "those countries where the rights and privileges of the state have superseded the rights and privileges of the common man."

The speaker reviewed various plans for the future medical care of the Canadian public and said the essential difference lies in the methods of remuneration and the allocation of control.

Dr. Marinker said any national medical plan should be on a voluntary, free enterprise and, if possible, non-profit basis.

Lawyer Fights Court Order

An unusual appeal case was scheduled to come before the Appeal Court here late today.

It is the appeal of A. F. Dawe, Victoria lawyer, against a judgment of Mr. Justice Clynne of Vancouver ordering him personally to pay the costs of a damage suit for acting as solicitor for a client of unsound mind.

The client was a Victoria woman who filed a damage suit against the North Vancouver General Hospital, Dr. J. Ross MacLean and two policemen, L. Clark and J. B. Apps of Vancouver. She claimed she was falsely arrested and taken to hospital.

The case never came up for trial because counsel representing defendants filed an application before Mr. Justice H. S. Wood in Vancouver for an inquiry into the ability of Dawe's client to instruct her solicitor.

Mr. Justice Wood granted the application. The inquiry was held before Mr. Justice Clynne who ruled that Dawe's client was not only incompetent to give instructions but was suffering from a serious mental illness at the time the alleged case of action arose. The justice said it should be for the solicitor to assess the ability of his client to instruct him, as well as the reliability of her instructions.

B.C.'s '52 Fisheries Yield Leaps Close To $69 Million

Total marketed value of British Columbia's fisheries products in 1950 amounted to $68,821,358, a $12,701,208 increase over 1949, according to the annual report of the provincial Department of Fisheries released today.

The principal species, as marketed in 1950, were salmon, with a value of $48,701,583; herring, with a value of $9,313,447; and halibut, with a value of $5,551,330. The salmon production in 1950

NO PLACE FOR PUSSY

College Campus Gags Charge Of 'Catnapping'

By R. E. PORTER

You want to start some trouble, son?

Go up Mount Tormie way and make mewing noises on Victoria College campus when the undergraduates are around. Or go about calling "Puss, puss, pussy," and tell them you're looking for your stolen cat.

Ever since Miss Dorothy Cox, member of Victoria's S.P.C.A., charged that College students were stealing pet cats a day or so ago, there has been a certain defensive reserve among biology students.

It seems the suggestion has been made that students are using these "catnapped" creatures for awful experiments in their biology lab.

So some of the students are using along with what they insist must be a "gag."

"Here's one of the cats we 'borrowed,'" one of the young men told The Times.

"We are going to dissect this meek little animal," he added. One of them had the thing on a leash and one pushed from behind.

It was a large and ferocious-looking cougar which lives in an attic.

While their crowded classmates watched, the undergraduates propped and dragged the protesting creature across the campus and posed with weapons by its side.

FIGHT CONTROL BODY WANTED FOR VICTORIA

Would Regulate Ring And Pro Wrestling

Setting up of an athletic commission to regulate and supervise professional boxing and wrestling was recommended today at a meeting of the City Council.

Chief of Police John Blackstock recommended the move after Saturday night's disturbance at a wrestling match in the Armories, city solicitor Arthur Patton stated.

Patton asked council to authorize drafting of an amendment to the Municipal Act to pave way for such a commission.

NO PAY PLANNED

According to Patton it would serve without remuneration and duties would include:

Prescribing equipment and rules for conduct of professional boxing and wrestling; issuance of permits for exhibitions; pass upon and approve contracts; investigate conduct of any participant in exhibitions or contests.

Decision of the commission would be final and subject only to appeal to the City Council.

The commission could restrain conduct or participation in contests, without prescribed permits.

"It is considered that wrestling as conducted in the city of Victoria at the present time should be definitely regulated and it is felt such a commission is therefore requested."

City's health and welfare committee today recommended that council accept a bid from George Farmer to construct a retaining wall on the health and welfare grounds, Cook Street, at a cost of $300. The wall was recommended by the parks administrator and medical health officer.

History Names Eight English Queens

There have been eight Queens of England, including the present Queen Elizabeth II, since the Norman conquest in 1066.

Historians agree on six. The two doubtful candidates for the throne, historically speaking, are Matilda and Lady Jane Grey.

Matilda was the daughter of Henry I, and by present-day standards the natural successor to the throne.

However, the Great Council of England, reluctant to acknowledge a female sovereign on Henry's death, chose Stephen. Matilda fought back, was actually crowned in London, but gradually alienated her friends and retired to Normandy in 1148.

Stephen is listed by most authorities as the reigning monarch of the period.

Lady Jane Grey, on the other hand, was not the natural successor when Edward VI died at 16. She was, however, proclaimed Queen and held the throne for nine days until the rightful heir Mary I (rightful again by present-day standards) gathered her forces and forced Jane to surrender the crown.

Matilda's case cannot be ignored because she was—or should have been—Queen by right of inheritance. Jane actually was proclaimed Queen, and therefore must be included in the dynasty.

The England of the two periods was divided, hence the confusion. In the time of Matilda, Saxons and Normans had not yet integrated to form one people, while in the case of Jane, Protestants and Roman Catholics were struggling bitterly for the monarchy. Jane was a Protestant, while her victor, Mary I, was the Catholic choice.

Knee-Hi Teaches Duncan Kiddies Safety Rules Of Work And Play

By RON BAIRD

DUNCAN—A shaggy little terrier won the hearts of 1,000 happy school children here Thursday.

Dr. Ballard's Knee-Hi paid them a visit.

They laughed with her, played with her, learnt her safety lessons and didn't want to let her go.

This thriving Island centre treated her like an old friend. Everyone from Duncan's friendly Mayor James Wragg and North Cowichan's Reeve A. E. Beasley down to the littlest grade one moppet—had the time of their lives with Knee-Hi.

Duncan did Knee-Hi proud. Up bright and early, Kiwanis Club members waited on the outskirts of town to give her a real welcome.

When Ballard salesman Cliff Carter swung his car around the last turn before reaching the new bridge that spans the fast-running Koksilah River, Kiwanians waved a cheery "hello" and were ready with a firm handshake for the visitors.

Led by Eric Turner, energetic chairman of the club's growing junior safety patrol committee, and Lindsay Loutet, immediate past-president of Duncan Kiwanis, they met Knee-Hi's genial, white-haired master, South Carolinian Dr. George Brunson.

Close behind were Mrs. Brunson, Victoria school trustee Austin Curtis, chairman of the Victoria Kiwanis Club's junior safety patrol committee; Mrs. Curtis and son Hugh.

Then the caravan of cars moved off, led by scarlet-coated R.C.M.P. Constable Laurie Low, the red lights on his highway patrol car winking.

Duncan knew its visitor. Kids pointed excitedly when they saw Knee-Hi's famous little car perched on top of the Dr. Ballard car; grown-ups looked up and waved; sturdy, call-booted loggers smiled as the car went by.

A short time later, 500 excited youngsters at the Duncan Elementary School shouted with delight as safety-wise Knee-Hi was introduced by school principal William Allister.

Kiwanis Club president, Vern Harford, told the youngsters: "You'll be glad you saw this show."

They were. So were Kiwanis safety patrol committee members E. M. Waldie and Lindsay Hetherington and club secretary Tom Webb, standing nearby.

Then Knee-Hi sat down to lunch with the club. She watched patiently in a corner as members and guests did justice to a roast beef dinner at the new club headquarters in the Alderlea Tearoom.

Lending color to the luncheon in their dress uniforms were Mounty Constables Low and C. E. Ennels, second-in-command of the R.C.M.P. detachment here.

Then Knee-Hi went back to work for 500 more schoolchildren in the roomy, new Cowichan Junior-Senior High School.

Vice-principal A. E. Goddard, his students and others from the Sisters of St. Anne and York Road Schools saw the same program that thousands of Victoria children have seen in the past few weeks.

Duncan treated Knee-Hi like a little princess.

HIGHER PAY, FEWER HOURS UNION AIMS

Higher pay and shorter hours are being sought by employees of the Empress Hotel in current negotiations with the C.P.R.

The workers are asking for a 20-cent-an-hour increase and reduction of the work week from the present 44 hours to 40 hours.

Employees are negotiating through the Empress division of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees. The last agreement between the union and company expired Jan. 1.

Bugles Still As Services Mourn Ruler

Men of the armed forces, while paying allegiance to their new queen, will observe a long period of mourning for the late King George VI.

The Navy will have no bands or bugles at colors or "sunset" until after the King's funeral, and drums, when carried, will be muffled. Officers will wear black arm bands.

Officers of the R.C.N. and R.C.N.V. will take new oaths of allegiance before "any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's forces."

Sgt. Ldr. P. D. P. Holmes administered the oath Thursday night to 38 officers of No. 2455 A.C. and W. Unit, R.C.A.F. All wore black mourning ribbons on their left sleeves.

It is also expected black ties will be compulsory dress for service personnel wearing civilian clothes off duty.

As long as the period of civilian mourning continues, officers will wear black arm bands, Army authorities said.

Social functions have been cancelled until further notice, and strict uniform regulations will be observed while on duty.

History Names Eight English Queens

There have been eight Queens of England, including the present Queen Elizabeth II, since the Norman conquest in 1066.

Historians agree on six. The two doubtful candidates for the throne, historically speaking, are Matilda and Lady Jane Grey.

Matilda was the daughter of Henry I, and by present-day standards the natural successor to the throne.

However, the Great Council of England, reluctant to acknowledge a female sovereign on Henry's death, chose Stephen. Matilda fought back, was actually crowned in London, but gradually alienated her friends and retired to Normandy in 1148.

Stephen is listed by most authorities as the reigning monarch of the period.

Lady Jane Grey, on the other hand, was not the natural successor when Edward VI died at 16. She was, however, proclaimed Queen and held the throne for nine days until the rightful heir Mary I (rightful again by present-day standards) gathered her forces and forced Jane to surrender the crown.

Matilda's case cannot be ignored because she was—or should have been—Queen by right of inheritance. Jane actually was proclaimed Queen, and therefore must be included in the dynasty.

The England of the two periods was divided, hence the confusion. In the time of Matilda, Saxons and Normans had not yet integrated to form one people, while in the case of Jane, Protestants and Roman Catholics were struggling bitterly for the monarchy. Jane was a Protestant, while her victor, Mary I, was the Catholic choice.

Knee-Hi Gets Big Welcome As Duncan Children, Adults See Program

By RON BAIRD

DUNCAN—A shaggy little terrier won the hearts of 1,000 happy school children here Thursday.

Dr. Ballard's Knee-Hi paid them a visit.

They laughed with her, played with her, learnt her safety lessons and didn't want to let her go.

This thriving Island centre treated her like an old friend. Everyone from Duncan's friendly Mayor James Wragg and North Cowichan's Reeve A. E. Beasley down to the littlest grade one moppet—had the time of their lives with Knee-Hi.

Duncan did Knee-Hi proud. Up bright and early, Kiwanis Club members waited on the outskirts of town to give her a real welcome.

When Ballard salesman Cliff Carter swung his car around the last turn before reaching the new bridge that spans the fast-running Koksilah River, Kiwanians waved a cheery "hello" and were ready with a firm handshake for the visitors.

Led by Eric Turner, energetic chairman of the club's growing junior safety patrol committee, and Lindsay Loutet, immediate past-president of Duncan Kiwanis, they met Knee-Hi's genial, white-haired master, South Carolinian Dr. George Brunson.

Close behind were Mrs. Brunson, Victoria school trustee Austin Curtis, chairman of the Victoria Kiwanis Club's junior safety patrol committee; Mrs. Curtis and son Hugh.

Then the caravan of cars moved off, led by scarlet-coated R.C.M.P. Constable Laurie Low, the red lights on his highway patrol car winking.

Duncan knew its visitor. Kids pointed excitedly when they saw Knee-Hi's famous little car perched on top of the Dr. Ballard car; grown-ups looked up and waved; sturdy, call-booted loggers smiled as the car went by.

A short time later, 500 excited youngsters at the Duncan Elementary School shouted with delight as safety-wise Knee-Hi was introduced by school principal William Allister.

Kiwanis Club president, Vern Harford, told the youngsters: "You'll be glad you saw this show."

They were. So were Kiwanis safety patrol committee members E. M. Waldie and Lindsay Hetherington and club secretary Tom Webb, standing nearby.

Then Knee-Hi sat down to lunch with the club. She watched patiently in a corner as members and guests did justice to a roast beef dinner at the new club headquarters in the Alderlea Tearoom.

Manslaughter Charge Sends Two For Trial

Fatal Traffic Mishaps Here

Two motorists involved in accidents in which two persons met death will face trial in higher courts.

This was the judgment of Magistrate H. C. Hall following preliminary hearings in city police court today and in Saanich court yesterday.

Sent up for trial were Leslie Marlow, Salt Spring Island, who appeared in Saanich court, and John E. Lauder, Victoria college student, in city police court.

Marlow was driving a car on Gorge Road Dec. 11 which was in a collision causing the death of Mrs. Jane Taylor, 70, of Ladysmith, police say.

Saanich police claim that Mrs. Taylor was a passenger in a car driven by her daughter, Mrs. Christine Harris, 45, also of Ladysmith, which was proceeding toward Victoria on the hill below Harriet Road when the collision occurred with the Marlow car.

JAN. 5 ACCIDENT

The charge against Lauder arose from a Jan. 5 early-morning accident at the intersection of Fisgard and Government.

Killed was Kee Jack Wo, 69-year-old Chinese resident of Victoria, who was crossing Government.

Police say that a taxi driven by Lauder struck the Chinese while he was crossing the street. A doctor said that Kee died from a broken neck and other injuries.

Lauder was operating as a taxi driver during the school holiday period when the accident occurred.

In keeping with the official day of mourning, both scheduled tours of the Times and Victoria Press plant will be canceled Friday, February 15.

Valentine's Day Parties

By PENNY SAVER

Gracious! I haven't seen so many party trimmings since the New Year. In fact I never dreamt they went in for decorations for Valentine's Day, the way they are this year. You'll be amazed. My first thought was to go to town and take a look at the selection of cards they were offering this year. As usual they are colorful. Expensive if you want a really elaborate one, otherwise very reasonable.

Well, as I said, I really only went down to see the Valentine cards, but as I was passing along to another counter I happened to see little party hats for children in silver or gold and a Valentine crest on the front. An elastic will hold them on. Price is 5 cents.

You have no idea what this started. I went down this aisle and found one thing after another that would complete party plans on Feb. 14.

Not A Party Without Balloons

For one thing, a party is not complete without balloons. Big red ones are a nickel each and others are a quarter for a package of 10.

And what about party crackers? You can't get along without those either. Really attractive ones suitable for this particular celebration or any other party during this year. Are selling at six for 49 cents and others at 79 cents for the same number.

Horns and whistles, which always add to the merriment, are being offered at a nickel apiece. The noise may drive you crazy, but after all, it's all in fun.

The younger set especially, appreciate place cards. They seem to like knowing that a special place was saved for them. The cutest little place cards all decked out for Valentine's Day are selling at 5 cents each also. It seems that everything in the way of decorations is the same price—5 cents.

Sometime before the day of the party you will want to remember some of your friends with cards.

As I mentioned before there is a wide variety to choose from. Also saw some make-your-own Valentine cards for the children. They always have a wonderful time cutting these cards out and they are just as cute as the ready-made ones. Book of these is 19 pennies.

Then again if you are thinking of giving a gift you will want to use the traditional red or white paper.

Red or white wrapping tissue is 10 pennies a roll and the same colored ribbon is priced at 10 and 25 cents a roll. It's going to be a gay Valentine's Day.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Thin Lower Lip Improved
By Extending The Lipstick

Q—"My upper lip is fairly well shaped but my lower lip is very thin, far too small. This gives my mouth an overhanging appearance. What can I do to remedy it?"

A—Draw the line of your lip stick out a bit past the normal line on the lower lip. Be sure that the line extends all the way to the ends or corners of your lips. Just a little more fullness can make a big difference, and with today's long-lasting lip shades you can forget the line, once you draw it, and fill in later on whenever you do your whole mouth over.

Q—"At what age do you think young girls should begin wearing formal?"

A—Today this begins much earlier than in the past. It depends partly on what your group does. It is not a matter of such vital importance that you need be too different from the rest of your crowd. I think it is too bad to hurry things too much. You will be grown up soon enough and certainly really delectable is not good taste until at least 16 or 17.

TODAY'S RECIPE

SALMON LOAF

One cup ripe olives, 1 (1½ lb.) can salmon, ¼ cup cracker crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, few drops Tabasco sauce, 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine. White or Hollandaise sauce.

Slice olives from pits into large pieces. Drain and flake salmon. Combine with cracker crumbs, salt, pepper, celery salt and Tabasco sauce, mixing well. Stir in onion, ripe olives, beaten eggs and butter. Pack lightly into top of well-buttered double boiler. Cover and cook over boiling water about 1 hour. Unmold onto platter and serve with white or Hollandaise sauce. Serves 4 to 6.

Men can also look forward to new styles this spring. Tip Top Tailors introduce the host coat, modelled by Pat Fansom, Vancouver. He is at ease in the loose-fitting jacket tailored in a very fine black and white check complemented with shimmering black lapels. Louise Olson, seated, and Betty Morphett were among models from Vancouver for the spring style show.

Spring Styles Featured
In Smart Tailored Lines

Sheer elegance in tailored ensembles delighted Victorians at a spring style show in the Club Sirocco last evening, featuring models created by Tip Top Tailors.

Mrs. Gail Mitchell, Vancouver, was commentator and professional models from the mainland city acted as mannequins. To capture the admiring eye was a chartreuse velvet coat classically belted at the waist and styled with a droop shoulder line, shawl collar and eye-catching large pockets with jaunty pointed cuffs.

Tip Top designers stressed simply-cut suits often relieved by soft belting and slanting or novel pockets. The skirts were slim and a little shorter than even the fashion-conscious women is wearing.

Men, too, had an important part in the showing of spring fashions. Male models casually showed the latest cut in suits and brought attention to tailored casual and dinner clothes.

Something new for the well-dressed man was a collarless

white dinner jacket which offered a casual air to dinner-time dignity.

Soft tones were used to create most of the suits, which were contrasted with accessories in brilliant tones of blooming spring. Artificial flowers often graced a lapel or perched at the shoulder line on feminine suits.

A novelty "A-hunting We Will Go" was an extremely smart outfit for riding. Blue ripcord jodhpurs were matched with an English Harris tweed jacket over a wine Venetian gabardine "weskit" touched with leather buttons.

A bridal scene is always appropriate at the close of a style show, but last evening Tip Top Tailors, in their bridal scene, highlighted what the well-dressed groom should wear.

He appeared in dashing morning coat and striped trousers and vest, complete with white carnation in the lapel.

Grenfell

Sir Wilfred Grenfell, a great Christian, was the subject of the interesting address given by Mrs. Richard Spicer last evening to Women's Missionary Society of members of evening auxiliaries of the Presbyterian of the United Church at the annual meeting in the church hall.

Mrs. Spicer with her husband, Dr. Richard Spicer, worked with Sir Wilfred in northern Newfoundland and Labrador.

Love of his fellowmen has been left for all to see and his faith in God helped him to achieve so much, Mrs. Spicer said. Sir Wilfred had faith, hope and love, and probably realized that love was the greatest force of all, she added.

Mrs. Spicer sketched the great man's early life and how he came to found his mission work. Son of an English clergyman he had a protected and normal childhood. At the time when he was to choose a career he decided to become a doctor, only because someone suggested it. His ambition was to become a wealthy, fashionable Harley Street specialist.

Attending London hospital in the slums he became disturbed about the poverty and squalor, but did not give up the Harley Street aim until later.

While still attending medical school he started a mission to teach the Christian faith to Jewish children. After that he went to the underground of London where the dregs of humanity lived in caves.

Then he volunteered to work among the fishermen on the North Atlantic coast, where during the season 25,000 to 30,000 fishermen were without medical or spiritual help.

He realized the great need of hospitalization and other facilities and the first year he returned with another young doctor and a nurse. As each new need arose Sir Wilfred met it.

St. Anthony, where he established his mission, had 11 broken-down, dirty shacks at the time. Today there are 3,000 good homes, a school, United and Anglican churches, a hospital for 120 beds, industrial centre, a children's home and a large exchange clothing store.

Mount View—The "Social Studies Course, Its Scope and Purpose," was subject of an address by F. Snowsall at a meeting of Mount View P.T.A. Substituting at the last minute for K. W. Brown, who was ill, student Dinah Kerr gave an impromptu talk on the lighter side of an exchange visit to the Bremerton, Wash. High School by Mount View students.

Mrs. McIntyre Will Lead Missionary Society; All The Officers Named

At the Thursday afternoon session of the 26th annual meeting, Victoria Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, Mrs. W. J. McIntyre was named to succeed Mrs. W. F. Perry as president.

Others elected were Mrs. George Williamson, first vice-president; Mrs. F. C. Matkin, second; Mrs. J. A. Donnell, third; Mrs. Ernest MacGinnis, fourth; Mrs. W. G. Wilson, fifth.

Miss Pearl More was chosen recording secretary; Mrs. S. H. Shaw, corresponding; Mrs. E. Kidson, treasurer; Mrs. J. W. Alton, Christian stewardship; Mrs. F. V. Shoemaker, mission circles; Mrs. J. C. Clearbush, mission bands; Mrs. J. G. Bompas, baby bands; Mrs. W. G. Hill, C.G.I.T.; Mrs. A. E. Matcham, community friendship; Mrs. W. G. Frith, Missionary Monday and World Friends; Mrs. J. H. J. Armitage, Christian citizenship; Mrs. W. B. Johnston, associate members; Miss Gladys Beall, press, and Mrs. J. R. Sharman, costumes.

In her presidential address, Mrs. Perry spoke of the school at Ahousat, completed last fall. Also, a small apartment was built at the rear of the structure to accommodate a missionary teacher and to provide a dispensary for the nurse.

"Work among the Chinese in Canada has greatly increased," said Mrs. Perry. "Good work is being done by up-Island missionary, Miss Ruth Peat, and also in the Chinese Christian Community Centre in Victoria by Mrs. A. I. McLean."

The president said there is still a great need in the foreign work, particularly in Africa, Central India and Japan, for more teachers, doctors and nurses.

Mrs. A. I. McLean led the worship period, and Mrs. J. Gillespie sang a solo.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Dean G. R. Calvert, who spoke on "Christian Citizenship." He said that although this is truly a time of "good grief," all will show their citizenship and loyalty by looking forward to the coronation and remembering what a "wonderful life we can have here in this wonderful world of ours."

"He Was a Good Man"

—by Maurice Humber.

When the shepherd's song echoed in a Syrian hill, And the Star over Bethlehem stood to fulfill, Joy to the world the shepherds did sing.

"Let the World Rejoice, receive her King." This birth of Jesus we forever Behold.

As the sweetest story ever told, Little children accept it, less earthy-shod, Perhaps it's because, they are closer to God.

As we grow older, we sometimes fear, God isn't with us, or even near. We start to question, get negative thots.

Sin, sickness and death, involved in these plots. Then we look out, put these thots in reverse.

All round us the Law of the great Universe. There is the snowdrop, defying the cold.

Warmth in the winter, so we never grow old. Never in doubt, or questioning the plan.

Love's promise on earth, unfolding to man. It's just because on Self we dwell.

Which is ALL the difference between Heaven & hell; But when we let go, we cease to sin.

"Of myself I can do nothing; 'tis the Father within." These are the thots for one gone away.

He knew all the things that Jesus did say, A man who felt with every breath.

"If you keep My sayings, you'll never see death." And these commands our KING did keep.

And so FOUND life in gentle sleep. Crowning a destiny, a glorious span.

Says the whole world, "He Was a Good Man."

A Hawaiian Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wells, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. D. M. Eldon, left for Vancouver yesterday from where they will fly to Hawaii this week-end for a visit of several weeks. They will stay at the Moana Hotel in Honolulu. Mrs. Eldon came from her home in Wilkie, Sask., on Wednesday to accompany her parents on the trip.

While they are away, Mr. W. Gove will occupy the Beach Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. Wells.

Dr. and Mrs. Fred Nichols of Edmonton are visitors in the city and are staying at the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. F. Manning, Ripon Road, left Wednesday for Honolulu, where she will spend a three-week vacation.

Miss E. B. Elworthy was hostess during the tea hour recently in her Bank Street home. Guests numbered 30.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding of Miss Joan Lavinia Webb and Mr. Edwin Arthur Popham, last evening, were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pinchin, White Rock, and Mrs. E. L. Pottinger, Vancouver.

Dr. L. B. Jaques will be a visitor in Victoria from Saskatoon this week-end, the guest of Rev. F. E. M. Tomlin, at his home, 1737 Fairfield Road. Dr. Jaques is head of the Department of Physiology at the University of Saskatchewan.

Among the social affairs attendant on the departure of Viscount and Viscountess Alexander of Tunis for England was the late afternoon reception at Rideau Hall, Ottawa, for members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery and their wives.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Verley returned earlier this week to their Dufferin Road home, following a three-week vacation in Honolulu. They flew both ways on the Pan-American Line.

Miss Mia Schjelderup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Schjelderup of Courtenay, left recently for Ottawa, en route to St. John, N.B., from where she will sail for Britain. She will be married in March to Mr. Robert N. Robson of Edinburgh where the couple plan to live. The bride-elect, who is a graduate of McGill University in physio-therapy, has spent the past three years in her profession in and near London, Eng. She has many friends in this city.

Last week-end was a gay one at Forbidden Plateau Lodge, where there was good sailing during the daylight hours of Saturday and Sunday, and dancing into the "bee sma" hours the same evenings.

Among guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Walmsley, Misses D. Snider, B. McKinnon, A. Stephenson and M. Williams, all of Courtenay, and Misses E. Fowler, M. Sherbino, G. Skinner, M. Stroh, E. Wight, H. L. Pearson, E. Nordahl, E. J. Webb and R. Watson, of Port Alberni.

Educational Work Group's Main Project During Year

A Recent Bridal Couple

St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church was the scene recently of the nuptial service which united in marriage Margot Constance Bowden and Robert Alexander Rainsford. Rev. R. Roberts officiated. The bride is the daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Sidney R. Bowden, Constance Avenue, and the groom is the son of Mr. C. A. Rainsford, Linnet Road, Elk Lake, and late Mrs. Rainsford. (Photo by Jancas.)

POSTPONEMENTS

Owing to the death of King George VI, the following affairs have been postponed.

The dance arranged by Metichosin P.T.A. to be held on Feb. 16, has been postponed to a date to be announced later.

Bridge and tea which was to have been held at the Colwood Golf Club on Tuesday, Feb. 12, has been postponed until the following week, on Tuesday, Feb. 19, commencing at 2.

The 5th annual Shrine Ball, sponsored by Gizeh Shrine Band, to be held at the Empress Hotel on Friday, Feb. 15, has been postponed until Friday, March 14.

Meeting of Victoria Women's Canadian Club, arranged for Friday, Feb. 15, in the Empress Hotel at 2.45, has been postponed to Wednesday, Feb. 13, at the same time and place. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Kate Aitken, world renowned radio commentator and newspaper woman, who will be in the city to broadcast her weekly program from CJVI.

Brentwood Women's Institute Plan Party To Aid Solarium

A film depicting the true story of a small Duncan child who was a patient in the Solarium will be shown at the children's Valentine costume party to be sponsored by Brentwood Women's Institute next Saturday at 7 in Institute Hall. Also on the program are child artists, magician, Frank Merrifield and a novelty number.

Costumes will be judged in four age groups: under 6 years, 6 to 8; 9 to 12 and 12 to 16 and refreshments will be free to all children in costume.

Mrs. G. D. Moody was hostess at a recent meeting of the institute when Mrs. C. E. Douglas, home economics convenor, gave a talk on winter desserts, especially pies. Many recipes were given and a discussion of the culinary art followed.

Mrs. Roger Ronson, who recently returned from a four-month vacation in Great Britain, was welcomed and entertained the group with a graphic description of her travels and of institute work in Britain.

Next meeting will be in the hall, Tuesday at 2.30.

Muted Colors To Be Used In London

LONDON, Feb. 7 (Reuters)—The blacks, navy blue and greys which dominate the spring and summer fashion collections of London's leading dressmakers will strike the keynote of every official functions in Britain in the months of mourning ahead.

Designed, made and shown to the press for the first time last week, the colors used might have been selected with a sense of foreboding of what the future held.

Today, the couturiers frantically checked their stocks of black and grey materials, ready for the mourning and half-mourning orders which will now replace those expected for the big events of the season.

Auxiliary Helps Repair Church Kitchen

A sum of $300 was voted to managers of the church for kitchen repair work, at a meeting of Fairfield United Women's Auxiliary.

President Mrs. J. R. Handasyde was in the chair and devotional taken by Mrs. B. C. Bracewell.

Plans were completed for a Valentine's tea at the home of Mrs. Bracewell, 121 Howe Street, on Tuesday, from 3 to 5, with Mrs. R. Husband in charge.

The group will cater for the Men's Club supper, with Mrs. W. Allen convenor.

Chapter Names Committee Heads

Regent, Mrs. William Blair, presided at a recent meeting of Florence Nightingale Chapter, I.O.D.E. when convenors of standing committees were appointed as follows: Mrs. F. St. Clair, Kitching, Empire services at home and abroad; Mrs. J. L. Gates, Mrs. L. A. Lucas, constitution; Mrs. M. Smith, hospitality and telephone; Mrs. O. Pinhorn, Empire study; Mrs. R. A. McLennan, Empire work in India; Mrs. J. Baker, endowment fund; Mrs. E. Drummond, films; Mrs. H. Lethaby, immigration and Canadianization; Mrs. O. Pinhorn, membership; Mrs. T. Brooker, flowers; Mrs. W. R. Roskilly, program, and Mrs. H. A. Young, publicity.

Nominated for National Council were Mesdames J. L. Gates, G. Lillie and T. Lumsden.

An allocation of $19 was made to Dean Mary Bollert memorial fund, and a daily quart of milk and wearing apparel were voted to a needy family.

Nuptial Service In St. George's For Joan Webb And Edwin Popham

Standard baskets of plum blossoms, snapdragons and dark tulips created a spring floral background for the nuptial service last evening in St. George's Church, Cadboro Bay, which united in marriage Joan Lavinia Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Robert Webb, Oxford Street, and Edwin Arthur Popham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Edward Popham, Vining Street, Rev. William Hills officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of heliotrop champagne-toned Limerick lace with a flounced skirt falling in train over a crinoline. The lace bodice featured a scalloped neckline and the moulded waistline of ivory satin came to a point at the back. A short tulle veil misted over the bride's shoulders from a head-dress of stiffened lace edged with pearls. She complemented her bridal ensemble with a spray of dark red tulips framed in glossy leaves.

Canadian Pacific Ladies Lawn Bowling Club, card party, and afternoon tea, Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Company store, Monday afternoon. Cards at 2, tea served later.

with draped Bertha collar and flared skirt. Her scutcheon-brimmed bonnet of matching velvet tied beneath the chin with champagne tulle and she carried a matching velvet muff with gardenias and white freesia pinned to it.

Darrell Popham, brother of the groom, was best man and Alan Macfarlane, Richard Ellis and Alan Beesley were ushers.

The newlyweds received guests in front of a mirror wreathed with plum blossoms and lighted candles at a reception in the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crombie, Uplands Road, Robert Crombie proposed the toast.

Upon leaving for her honeymoon at Timberline Lodge, Mt.

City Council Meets To Pass Condolences

A resolution of condolence on the death of King George VI, was passed by City Council meeting in a brief session Thursday night.

The resolution read in part: "Be it resolved, that members of the council place on record, their heartfelt thankfulness to Almighty God for His late Majesty's reign, and for his high qualities of mind and spirit which won, in a spontaneous and wholehearted response, the unswerving devotion and loving regard of his people."

"And be it further resolved that His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, be requested to transmit through the proper authorities to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, the following message of condolence: 'On behalf of the citizens of Victoria, the capital city of British Columbia, the members of the Victoria City Council desire to express to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, Her Majesty the Queen-Mother, Elizabeth, and all the members of the Royal Family, deepest sympathy in their bereavement and distress; and pray they may be Divinely strengthened and comforted in this time of sorrow.'"

Decision was made at the annual meeting after H. G. Watts of the Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Unit described garbage systems elsewhere and suggested forming an organized garbage disposal.

Elected to office were Desmond Crofton, president; W. H. Bradley, vice-president; and M. Acheson, secretary-treasurer. Council members elected were Dr. J. G. Ankenman, Howard Chalk, Mrs. Roy Coleman, J. B. Foubister, E. L. Harker, W. Hobday, L. G. Mout, Mrs. Austin Wells and V. C. Morris.

J. B. Acland reported on parks, Dr. A. Francis on float facilities, and W. M. Mout and Gavin C. Mout on C.P.R. facilities.

Islanders Study Garbage Disposal

(Special To The Times) GANGES-Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce will appoint a standing committee to consider organized garbage disposal.

HOME GARDEN

With digging in progress in many parts of the district, suggestions on this phase of gardening should be in order. There are two tools made for digging: the spade (or shovel) and the digging fork. By using the correct tool for the job in hand, the soil will remain in a more workable condition.

When the area to be dug is in sod or in a green manure crop, the spade does the best job of turning under the vegetation.

In fact, the spade is designed to handle all rough digging. On clear ground which is being turned over preparatory to planting, the spading fork is the tool to use, because it has less tendency to compress the soil. The looser the soil remains, the better the air can circulate through it, and the sooner it is in a condition for planting.
